Independent church rises

Pastor Darald Gruen and his followers start a new Bible-based, Lutheran congregation

By KENNETH PATCHEN
Staff Reporter

Beautiful Savior Evangelical Lutheran Church has come together in Antioch to worship with Pastor Darald Gruen.

The 90 people are literally "building it from the beginning and deciding how we want to do things in our congregation," said Pastor Gruen. This includes their worship service, their mission outreach, and even their church building.

"Right now we are renting an empty Baptist Church," Gruen explained, but "we eventually will be looking for a permanent home of our own in the Antioch-Lindenhurst area."

In the meantime, they are at 554 Parkway (one block west of Route 83 and North Avenue). The worship service is at 9 a.m. on Sunday mornings followed by fellowship and Bible study.

"The people who attend Beautiful Savior have three basic characteristics," Gruen explains. "One, they are genuinely interested in a deep personal relationship with God through the person and work of Jesus Christ."

"Two, they are kind and compassionate people who recognize the genuine Christianity of all believers in the Body of Christ," he said. "And three, they are independent thinkers who search the scriptures for themselves and will not swallow something just because a church body says it."

The last characteristic can also refer, in part, to Gruen's own departure from his previous church because of disagreements on an issue of church theology (see <http://members.aol.com/gracewww/gruen.htm> for a statement by Gruen in July, 1996 when he left Faith Evangelical Lutheran Church).

"I have been a Lutheran Pastor for 24 years," Gruen said. Recently, a group of lay people came to him and said, "Let us start our own independent church and worship God as the Holy Bible directs us." Eventually the Beautiful Savior congregation formed in the fall of 1996.

Although originally from Wisconsin, where he trained as a theology student at Wisconsin Lutheran Seminary in Mequon, he has been in Illinois for 19 years. He lives in Lindenhurst and is married to Sharon and they have seven children, four still at home. The children are: David, Daniel, Laura, Jon, Rebecca, Andrew, and Anna.

"We don't belong to a synod," Gruen said of Beautiful Savior, although he is accepted as a pastor by the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod. "I'm on their ministerium," he said of the listing of their pastors.

Beautiful Savior Evangelical Lutheran Church is an independent congregation. As for their center for worship, "the Lord kind of directed us to this building," he said.

Eventually he expects the Baptists to whom they rent the building to reestablish a congregation there, so they will build their own structure eventually. "We have not spent a lot of time discussing that," he added.

The new congregation is doing well. Gruen said members are mostly from Antioch and Lindenhurst, but others come from Lake Villa, Winthrop Harbor, Gurnee, and Wisconsin.

"Things are going great; it's a great group of people," he said. "God is good; he is our loving heavenly Father. Everyone in this congregation has been blessed by good . . . We want to share this with other people."

Services last between 60 and 75 minutes. There is not a formal liturgy. Men do the scripture readings, and during Gruen's absence, people may conduct the service. Men occasionally write sermons and deliver them. "The children worship with the parents. Sunday school is done with families rather than (be) age segregated," Gruen explained. "We use some of the old traditional hymns from hundreds of years ago as well as some of the contemporary Christian music." Sharon Gruen plays the piano for the worship services.

There is a strong emphasis on family units. "We believe God made Adam and Eve and the family is the

Lions' Barbecue and Auction is Sunday

By KENNETH PATCHEN
Staff Reporter

The Antioch Lions Club will gather together in Williams Park Sunday, Aug. 3, to serve the sixth annual barbecue of chicken, hamburgers, hot dogs and corn to community residents.

Food will be served between 11 a.m. and 6 p.m. Dinner plates will be $6 without a drink, but they do include a half chicken, cole slaw, chips, and bread.

At the same place, the Antioch Rescue Squad will conduct its auction of donated merchandise from area participating businesses. Antioch residents may buy a meal and bid on some useful goods and services, all of which will ultimately benefit the Rescue Squad and its emergency response capabilities.

The event is the Lions' largest fund-raising activity. It is a full-scale family event. The funds from this year's barbecue will be used to purchase a new type of air-splint, as well as defibrillators for the rescue squad.

A defibrillator is "a device that delivers an electrical shock at a certain voltage and can be extended to the heart through the chest wall," said Patty Cizowski, a nurse in the Community Outreach Program at St.

Therese Medical Center. A defibrillator "is used for restoring normal cardiac rhythm when the heart stops beating or is having bad rhythm."

"Use of a defibrillator is an emergency procedure and generally the procedure would be called cardioversion," Cizowski said. The electrical impulses into the chest restart the heart at the rate it should be going rather than the rate it is going.

Waterway wants to promote Chain on the web

By JEFF PATERSON
Staff Reporter

In attempting to draw more family boaters to the area, The Fox Waterway should promote itself through brochures and a new Internet website.

That was the finding of the tourism committee in its recommendations presented to the Fox Waterway Agency Advisory Committee at its meeting of July 28.

"(The goal is promote) not McHenry county tourism, or Lake County tourism, but tourism on the Chain . . . specifically targeting the activities, businesses and things to do on the water," said the committee's Bob Pelzer, who presented the report.

While the waterway agency already has a website, the content of which centers on agency business and projects, the committee recommended that a new website have expanded content helping to promote the Chain O' Lakes as a recreational resource.

Proposed features of a new website include lake maps, a calendar of upcoming events, a listing of accommodations, recreational information such as listings of marinas, boat launches and fishing information, and a listing of waterway attractions, as well as sticker and regulation information.

An estimate for the cost of the new website, offered by a Fox Lake-based business, was $2,850 to $5,400 for site design and a $39.95 per-month hosting fee.

In discussing the website option, Bob Kirschner, of the advisory committee's water quality group, pointed out that posting information electronically could help reduce office mail and phone expenses.

"Obviously there is a cost involved in maintaining the page," he said. "But once you start thinking about all the time and money you can save, it helps offset the cost associated with maintaining (the site)."

Kirschner urged the agency's board to move quickly to make use of the advantages offered by the Internet.

"Internet technology is here and now," he said. "My advice is to start simple, get on it now, put on basic information and add on to that."

Pelzer acknowledged that the Internet was "the wave of the future," but felt that a new website would still need to be complemented by promotional brochures because much of the 40-and-over boater group to be targeted did not have Internet access.

In addition to the creation of the brochures and a website, key recom-

'Storytelling is so important, because it connects people and it fires the imagination.'

It was an event of mythic proportions

By JEFF PATERSON
Staff Reporter

They came from across the state and beyond — to hear stories.

Although the weather was changeable, with hot afternoons and intermittent thunderstorms, people of all ages met once again in Spring Grove on the last weekend in July to hear tales spun by some of the continent's best storytellers.

The 14th Annual Illinois Storytellers Festival, hosted in Spring Grove Park, was a hit with visitors despite the weather.

Listening in the Children's Tent, Andrew and Matthew Medwecky, 11 and 7, from Chicago, liked Megan Wells' telling of Mowgli stories from the Jungle Book.

"She did very good impressions and they were good stories," Andrew said.

The boys' parents, Myron and Bea, were also impressed by the storytellers they heard, but sought relief from the July 26 sun.

"It's great, but it's almost too hot to enjoy," Myron said as the family left to get some rest, but added that they would return for ghost stories in the evening.

In addition to the popular ghost stories, the festival featured stories from Spanish, Jewish, Hawaiian, Japanese and Native American cultures.

For Artistic Manager Jim May, a full-time professional storyteller since 1985, the festival has become the natural outgrowth of his own ever-growing fascination with stories.

Once an elementary school teacher and later a counselor at McHenry County College, May was raised in a rich environment of stories, but one that he, at first, had trouble appreciating.

"I grew up in this town and my family goes back five generations in Spring Grove," he said. "As I was growing up, there were lots of uncles, lots of aunts, so I kind of grew up around stories, although I didn't know about storytelling, other than being able to tell a good joke."

That was until a friend took May to the National Storytelling Festival in Jonesboro, Tenn. There he found a rich diversity of storytellers that eventually set him on a path to a new career.

"Here were these people just telling stories; a woman, whose great-great grandmother was a slave, telling Brail Rabbit stories; mountain people, some of whom had literally never been off the mountain, were telling stories that dated from Shakespeare's time."

One of the oldest stories in the Western tradition, "Beowulf," was also preserved by the mountain people, in a tale called 'Jack and the Fire Fire Dragon Man.'

When he returned to his class of fifth-graders, May started telling stories, and he found he had captured his students' attention in a whole new way.

"Part of it is pictures, imagination, image; they were seeing something in their mind," May said. "The second thing is the personal contact; you're connecting with a person because you're both 'in the story'."

"That's why storytelling is so important, because it connects people and it fires the imagination," he said.

And from the traditions tent, with its barn stories, to the adult and big tents, with tales of all types, firing the imagination was the goal of storytellers with a wide variety of backgrounds.

Johnny Moses, 36, is fluent in eight native languages, and a master storyteller. Orignally from Vancouver Island in Canada, Moses' stories, such as "Mr. Crow and Octopus Lady" and "The Bogeywoman," are drawn from many native cultures.

In using good humor, timing, and interesting sound effects, Moses unites his audiences through tales from a culture often not their own.

"People naturally love stories, and, in that commonality, we're not so different after all," Moses said. "People have feelings and those feelings are expressed in stories; we sometimes laugh at the same things and sounds."

Other storytellers draw upon other traditions. The repertoire of storyteller Janice Harrington, of Champaign, Ill., comes from American folklore and from the bayous of Louisiana.

Harrington sees the storytelling at the festival as a continuation of an original role to help people interpret the world.

"A need that humanity has always had has been to explain the world around them," she said. "Every culture has always needed storytellers to step in and fulfill that purpose, to step in and say why we're here and what the world's about."

Interpreting the world for children is different than doing it for adults, however.

"Children are meaner," she said with mock seriousness. "Children are not shy about telling you 'that story is pretty boring; you better be on your game if you're storytelling to kids.'"

"We're all on an odyssey. That's why stories were created as journeys; we're all on a journey," he said. "We'll all meet 'demons' on the way, but there will be 'mentors and magic' too. And if you know that it's going to happen ahead of time, you can handle it a bit better."

One major lesson May said that myth can teach us is that brokenness or challenge is essential for eventual success and achievement.

"In our success-oriented culture, when you fail, people say 'Oh my God,' but failure is a part of the story too."

To illustrate this final point, May tells the story of Maladoma Some, a West African shaman who visited the United States and returned to the elders of his people. In having U.S. culture explained to them, the elders could not understand the concept of buying insurance to avoid the effects of misfortune.

WATERWAY: Wants to promote Chain on the web

Recommendations of the committee included: coordinate participation at boat and outdoor shows between local chambers of commerce; help to promote special events; encourage development of a waterfront resort/hotel; and select a guide publication to be used in conjunction with the brochure in promotion of the waterway.

Additional recommendations were: to work with the media to develop a family image for the Chain O' Lakes; to establish a high-profile tourist center; to explore the possibility of experimental geo-tube islands for use as recreational areas, and to advertise in outdoor activity publications.

A first step identified in generating content for both the website and the brochure was that interns from the University of Illinois' Tourism Research Laboratory undertake an inventory of tourist attractions and resources.

The advisory committee recommended that the Fox Waterway Agency Board vote to pursue both the new website and the attraction inventory at its meeting of Aug. 14.

"One of our missions is to promote tourism," said Advisory Committee Vice-Chairwoman Judy Martini. "I think it will be a good start... but they (the board) need to make a commitment."

CHURCH: Pastor and followers start new congregation in Antioch

Adam and Eve and the family is the basic structure of society," he said. "If the families of the nation are strong and healthy, the nation will be strong and healthy."

"We believe in a verbal inspiration of the Bible, that God has told the prophets and disciples what to write. And so, we believe that the Holy Bible is the Word of God and is the rule and norm for our lives," said Gruen.

In terms of mission work, there has been some thought given to possible locations in the Philippines and Ukraine.

"We initially started helping a mission in the Philippines," he said, with Bibles, clothing, food, and medicine. He says the congregation is "looking for a special mission opportunity at home, here, some way of reaching out to people here with the love of God, and sharing the blessings he's freely given us."

Gruen expects that they will come to know their mission. "It's not our choice but rather how God directs the lives of people and the contacts he makes between them."

The congregation of Beautiful Savior Evangelical Lutheran Church is most important to Gruen. He has been through some difficult times. "I almost gave up on churches," he said. However, of this congregation, he now says, "they have loved us back to life."

July 29 the Church began its first vacation bible school. It is open to people of all religious backgrounds and ages. From 6 to 7 p.m., there is a cookout, singing, and games. Bible study and worship is from 7 to 8:30 p.m. The school meets through August 2.

Agreement formalizes county gang task force

By KENNETH PATCHEN
Staff Reporter

The Antioch Police Department has not had to call upon other community police departments to assist with gang problems, but it remains prepared to do so when necessary. "We haven't had a large gang presence," says Antioch Police Chief Charles Watkins. What problems have existed, "We've been able to work it out with our own officers."

However, as an insurance policy, the village is part of the Gang Task Force and remains prepared to help other communities, or call upon their help, should the occasion arise.

Federal, State, and local law enforcement officials throughout Lake County are working to have all villages adopt a Gang Task Force Intergovernmental Agreement. This will provide formal mutual aid and legal authority for police officers to provide assistance to member agencies about juvenile gang problems.

"The intergovernmental agreement formalizes the process to invite the gang task force into their community," says Keith Kalodimos, Commander of Operations for the Mundelein Police Department. At the present time, the Lake County Gang Task Force operates under the authority of state law. "The agreement," he said, "professionalizes the idea of using the task force."

Antioch Police Chief Watkins said, "We aggressively stay on top of gang members." They have a right to be in the community but only as long as they are respectful of other people's rights, he said.

Watkins cites the recent Taste of Antioch as typical of the community. "It was the most peaceful one we've had since its inception," he noted.

The Gang Task Force provides mutual aid to member police departments and social service agencies to control the impact of gangs throughout Lake County. Antioch is a long-time member of the task force and provides mutual aid and assistance to nearby jurisdictions when requested. Chief Watkins could recall only one time when the department had to extend assistance. Otherwise, usually, "We've been able to work it out with our own officers," he said.

The gang task force agreement recognizes the legal authority by which police officers would work when outside their employer's jurisdiction. In addition, there is an indemnification paragraph and protection of member agencies against burdensome costs. It "removes liability for being unable to respond to mutual aid requests or for withdrawing mutual aid," according to the agreement.

The Gang Task Force is administered under the authority of the Lake County Chiefs of Police Association.

Under terms of the proposed intergovernmental agreement, a police officer providing assistance has the same powers as officers of the department for which assistance is provided and is subject to the direction of the chief of police of that department. Mutual aid or assistance is not mandatory under the agreement and members are not expected to assume burdensome costs without some agreement for reimbursement.

The range of assistance to local communities available from the task force is extensive. Aside from the more direct tactical and intelligence gathering function of the task force, it also has a public education program. Public agencies, such as schools, and private businesses, such as shopping mall managers, may request education programs about gangs and their activity in the county. The process is somewhat easy: just pick up the telephone and call the local police chief to request information. "We have prepared a brochure by the Lake County Gang Task Force," said Kalodimos, that explains how to arrange an educational program. In Antioch, however, public education programs are handled by Det. Craig Somerville. "It's a very dynamic program," said Watkins.

The task force collects and disseminates information about gangs, tracks their movements, identifies members, and interprets the messages in gang graffiti. The Antioch Police, according to Watkins, have two officers who participate in those meetings and share or receive update information about gangs.

ANTIOCH

DUIs

Antioch Police officers arrested Luis B. Morales, 30, Round Lake Beach, on July 26 at 2:01 a.m. as he traveled east bound on North Avenue east of Tiffany Road in his 1993 Chevrolet Pickup truck. He allegedly crossed the centerline near Highway Drive. He was given a breathalyzer test at Lindenhurst Police Department (0.20). He posted $100 bond and a drivers license. Morales was given a court date of August 26 in Waukegan.

Antioch police officers arrested Bernie C. Thompson, 27, of Trevor, in a 1987 Dodge that was allegedly weaving from lane to lane on Bishop Street. He also allegedly disregarded regulatory signs. Thompson refused the opportunity to take a breathalyzer test. Police charged him with resisting arrest and DUI. He was given a court date of July 19 in Waukegan.

Disobeys stop sign

Antioch Police officers arrested Michael P. Roszak, 38, of Lake Villa, at Lake Street and Tiffany Road on July 22 at 8 p.m. in a 1997 Ford. His vehicle allegedly went around a corner without stopping. He was charged with disobeying a stop sign and driving while his license was suspended. He was released on the required bond and assigned an August 27 court date at 9 a.m. in Grayslake.

Arrested on warrant

Antioch Police officers arrested Daniel J. Duddleston, 21, of Vernon Hills, on an outstanding warrant through the McHenry County Sheriff's office. Police stopped him in a 1997 Chevrolet in the 700 block of Lake Street of Antioch for allegedly failing to use a turn signal. When asked to provide a license, he allegedly told them that he did not have a license. A check with police computers revealed the outstanding warrant for a probation violation on a charge of unlawful possession of a controlled substance. He was unable to provide bond. Duddleston was assigned a court date of August 27 at 9 a.m. in Grayslake for the charge of failure to signal.

Waterfalls' Bouzanis Warrant Arrest

Antioch Police officers arrested Peter G. Bouzanis, 33, of Mount Prospect, on an arrest warrant for the Mount Prospect Police Department. He was arrested on July 25 at 3:40 p.m. in the lobby of the Waterfalls Restaurant. Bouzanis was taken to the Antioch Police Department, given a faxed copy of the warrant, allowed to make one telephone call, and held to await Mount Prospect police who picked him up at 6:30 p.m.

More warrant arrests

Antioch Police officers arrested two drivers in separate stops for traffic offenses who turned out to be wanted under warrants for other offenses.

Police arrested Joshua D. Pellard, 19, of Antioch in a 1980 Ford at Orchard and Main Street on July 24 at 8:57 a.m. Attention to his vehicle was drawn by an inoperative left rear brake light. Pellard allegedly told the officer that he did not have his license with him. A check of police records found that he was wanted through McHenry County Sheriff's office for damage to property. Also, his vehicle's plates had been suspended for a mandatory insurance violation. Information on bond and court date was not available.

Antioch police also arrested

Douglas Nolan, 27, of Antioch, on Orchard Street west of Toft Street on July 23 at 11:31 a.m. in a 1989 Mazda pickup. He was alleged to have a loud exhaust system. When his license was checked, it was determined that he was wanted on a warrant on a charge related to cruelty toward a child by the Cleveland County Sheriffs Department in Oklahoma. He was issued tickets for being a fugitive from justice and a verbal warning for having a loud vehicle exhaust. He was transported to the Lake County Jail to be turned over to Oklahoma authorities.

Suspended licenses

Antioch police arrested three drivers in separate incidents for traffic offenses who turned out not have proper drivers licenses with them.

Antioch police arrested Ralph M. Klinger, 41, of Antioch, on July 21 at 10:23 p.m. in a 1986 Toyota Camray. When he made a right turn, allegedly a brown lens cover on his tail light made a white light. When stopped by officers, he allegedly told them he did not have his license. A check of police records revealed that his license was suspended. He was given tickets for improper tail lights and driving on a suspended license. Released on proper bond, he was given an August 27 court date at 9 a.m. in Grayslake.

Antioch police arrested Darla M. Chiuffo, 38, of Antioch, July 22 at 11:22 p.m. as she traveled north bound in the 500 block of Main Street in a 1979 Buick. She allegedly failed to use a turn signal going into a parking lot. She was given a ticket for failure to signal and driving on a suspended drivers license. Chiuffo was released on proper bond with an August 27 court date at 9 a.m. in Grayslake.

Antioch police arrested Jerry R. LaSaint, 20, of Antioch, on July 25 at 1:09 a.m. after stopping his vehicle as it traveled east bound on North Avenue at Hillside. His vehicle allegedly did not have a rear registration light and he was playing excessively loud music. LaSaint's drivers license was checked and found to be suspended by Illinois. He was issued tickets for not having a rear registration light, driving on a suspended license, and not having insurance. He was released on bond pending an August 13 court date at 9 a.m. in Grayslake.

LINDENHURST

Arrested for possession

Thomas Shogren, 26, of Zion, on July 26, was arrested for possession of marijuana and driving under the influence. He was stopped for erratic driving. He was found to have a small amount of what is believed to be marijuana. He failed field sobriety tests and refused a breath test.

Bicyclist dies in accident

By ALEC JUNGE
Staff Reporter

A Lake Villa man died after he was struck by a car trying to cross Route 83 on Hook Drive.

Richard Edwards, 40, 37253 Loretta, was hit by the van around 10 p.m., July 22. There were no charges brought against the driver, Linda Hodge, 29 of Grayslake.

According to police reports,

Hodge told police she was driving on Route 83 and saw two bicycles and hit the brakes. She reportedly felt the vehicle strike something and stopped the van immediately.

She asked the next passing motorist for assistance.

Another one of the bicyclists, who saw the accident, reportedly told police he could see the vehicle coming. He told Edwards not to cross the road, but Edwards did so anyway.

Edwards was rushed to Condell Medical Center where he was pronounced dead from injuries suffered from the accident at 10:45 p.m.

Authorities checked to make sure Hodge was not impaired by alcohol. She was not, and will not be charged with any driving infractions from the accident.

Edwards was employed at Hastings Lake YMCA.

Dog abuser wanted on warrant

By ELIZABETH EAKEN
Staff Reporter

The story of Molly the Doberman Pinscher captured a great deal of attention a couple years ago after the dog was discovered suffering from severe abuse in the Grayslake apartment of Charles M. Thornton. Thornton was convicted of animal abuse, but has since violated his terms of probation and failed to show up for a sentencing hearing, July 24, resulting in a $5,000 warrant being issued for his arrest.

Thornton's dog, later renamed Molly, was a puppy in May 1995 when Grayslake police discovered her after Thornton's neighbors, at Country Faire Village apartments, reported a dog had been howling for 36 hours.

The dog was discovered by police in a cage that was too small for her to stand. She was emaciated and was suffering from severe malnutrition and dehydration, had bleeding and infected paws and was coated with her own waste. She was treated, and after several months adopted by a new owner.

Barbara Fronceek and a group of about 70 supporters have been following this case since the dog was discovered. She is also involved in other animal abuse cases throughout the state. She said they initially were very worried the dog was going to be returned to Thornton, who requested custody of his pet.

"The problem is when these cases go to court they're dismissed by the judges," Fronceek said. "In our county, we've had several cases qualify for prosecution under the stronger class a law," but unfortunately they never seem to be sentenced under the law she expressed.

In Oct. of 1995, Thornton was found guilty of aggravated animal cruelty, a class A misdemeanor which carries a maximum penalty of one year in jail and a $1,000 fine; and animal cruelty, a class C misdemeanor which carries a maximum penalty of 30 days in jail and a $500 fine. The aggravated animal cruelty charge was later dropped.

Under his sentencing Thornton was placed on two years probation. Thornton didn't carry out other terms of his sentencing including undergoing a mental health evaluation, completing 200 hours of public service and completion of his GED requirements.

As of July 29, Thornton hadn't been located. Once Thornton is arrested, he will go before Judge Joseph Waldeck in Lake County Circuit Court Room 404 for sentencing.

Doctor to practice alternative methods for treating cancer

Conference will discuss how to scientifically evaluate if new treatments are working

By KENNETH PATCHEN
Staff Reporter

"We need to bring human values into our science," said Dr. Steven G. Ayer. To do this, he will soon begin a new stage of his medical practice, education, and career.

Ayer, a Grayslake resident practicing at the Primary Care Family Center in Antioch, has been invited by the National Institute of Health, Office of Alternative Medicine, Bethesda, Md., to participate in a conference Aug. 4 through 6. Attendees will discuss ways to evaluate cancer treatments that combine conventional, complementary, and alternative medical treatments for patients.

When he returns from the conference, he will begin to treat patients for cancer in a way that no doctor has been allowed to treat them for more than 60 years.

"I am just a scientific liaison for my colleagues in Mexico," he said. "I do not practice this therapy," he said of his work now. The treatment is known as Insulin Potentiation Therapy, IPT.

Ayer has studied IPT for many years, but has refrained from using it. However, the NIH conference will provide a science-based method for him to move forward with treatment for cancer patients, that he has always believed to be of value. For the first time, the conference will establish the use of a system of patient care evaluation that is applicable to a scientific framework.

"It's a very important conference," he said. "It is creating a level playing field upon which practitioners of non-traditional cancer treatment can go ahead and treat patients and report that data in a newly organized scientific format." The old format is being supplemented, he said, in part to respond to a congressional mandate.

The U.S. Congress is the origin of the change. A study by the medical profession found that many people were seeking cures for problems through alternative medical treatments. In response to that finding, Congress mandated the creation of the Office of Alternative medicine to study the phenomenon, Ayer said. Congress was responding to the reality of what people were doing, particularly those with cancer.

The Office of Alternative Medicine was created within the National Institutes of Health. A family physician, Dr. Wayne B. Jonas, is now the director of this office. Ayer said Jonas set forth to determine why "there are people out there getting well going to see these people" who provide alternative treatments. To do this, Jonas created POMES, an acronym for Prospective Outcomes Monitoring Evaluation System.

POMES is a method in which "non-traditional treatments are studied in the field on human beings and that can be considered valid scientific data." In other words, patients receive a treatment from their doctor in his office and the results are counted to determine if the treatment works. If a treatment appears to have promise, the National Institutes of Health will design a study to further evaluate the treatment in a prospective clinical trial (as opposed to retrospective analysis).

Dr. Steven G. Ayers at his Grayslake home, will leave the Antioch Primary Care Family Center to begin work with Insulin Potentiation Therapy under newly established research guidelines of the National Institutes of Health, Office of Alternative Medicine. —Photo by Sandy Bressner

Ayer speaks highly of Jonas. "Wayne Jonas should get a prize for stepping out and doing this" new format for research, he said. "He believes in the mandate from Congress."

To Ayer, the conference represents an opportunity to bring human values (such as openness and sensitivity) into scientific methodology. He sees it as an opportunity for treatment options to become available to people who have cancer and to build those treatments further into powerful medical treatment tools.

Ayer is at the conference to discuss the first of four methods to evaluate treatment. The four are: best case series, retrospective analysis, prospective single arm approach (i.e., no control group), and basic science. Ayer is there to demonstrate the virtue of a best case series approach for initial evaluation of non-traditional cancer treatment.

He will also be present at the conference to moderate another session that will discuss the issues related to POMES. Lawyers, traditional practitioners, and non-traditional practitioners will meet to talk about the proposals.

"It is anticipated that conflict will arise," he said.

He gives considerable credit to MD Anderson of Houston, Texas for assuring that his work was brought before the NIH for consideration at the conference.

Upon his return to Illinois, Ayer will begin research under the new NIH guidelines. "I'm going to start research which is basically just treating the patients with the treatment," he said.

Ayer has had a career-long interest in the value of Insulin Potentiation Therapy (IPT). First developed by Dr. Perez Garcia more than 60 years ago, the therapy is considered to be outside proper medical practice. Ayer has focused his work with IPT on the need to somehow respond to the demands of scientific inquiry. He has presented papers in peer-reviewed medical literature, attended scientific conferences, and undertaken "animal studies on the unrecognized actions of insulin on biomembranes."

What is Insulin Potentiation Therapy? It is a hormone being used as a medicine. "In this therapy, insulin is being used as a drug which has the action to potentiate, or enhance, the actions of other drugs on cells," said Ayer. IPT is a biological response modifier.

He gives another example not related to IPT.

"Cortisone is a hormone used as hormone replacement therapy for Addison's Disease just as insulin is used as hormone therapy for diabetes. Cortisone is also used widely as a drug for a lot of conditions that have nothing to do with Addison's Disease. In these circumstances, cortisone is being used as a drug with pharmacological actions that are useful in the treatment of many non-Addison related conditions. Similarly, IPT is used as a drug."

When he returns from the conference, Ayer will step into a new world of research under the rules of the National Institutes of Health and its Office of Alternative Medicine. He will have left his practice with Primary Care Family Center medical practice in Antioch to work with the Kingsley Medical Center, Arlington Heights. Ayer will be doing what physicians do and what researchers do.

He stresses "without the work of Dr. Perez Garcia I would have nothing of value to say to anybody." He hopes that his contribution will serve as a bridge between those who have come before him with intuitive and clinical-based knowledge of IPT as a cancer treatment and those who now demand the rigor of scientific methodology to establish treatment effectiveness and value.

Martini joins county officials in Baltimore

Judy Martini, Lake County Board Member, from District One of Antioch, joined more than 4,000 county officials from every corner of the country in Baltimore, Md. on July 11 to 15 to participate in the National Assn. of Counties' 62nd Annual Conference.

With welfare reform, Medicaid, crime, privatization and electric utility deregulation on the minds of many county leaders and their constituents, county officials were actively involved in dozens of workshops and association steering committee meetings as they strategized the best ways to address each challenge. County leaders also participated in housing, telecommunications, environmental, transportation, geospatial systems, children's issues and rural issues workshops.

Judy Martini was one of over 100 County Board Members throughout the United States to have received a certificate for attending one of NACO's most popular events. This interactive seminar was geared to develop personal and organizational resources, leadership skills and helped gain new insights on: the many hats of a County official, making the most of meetings, dealing with the public and conflict resolutions, consensus building, cutback sin management and techniques in dealing with the overwhelming challenges of governing one of the fastest growing counties in America.

A top issue at the annual conference, county leaders delivered to Senate Majority Leader Trent Lott (R-MS) and Health and Human Services Director Donna Shalala a 32 page report showing that counties are finding innovative ways to make welfare reform work.

As is common practice at the annual conference, county officials spent the majority of their time voting on dozens of resolutions and attending workshops to help them improve the operation of local government. Some leaned how to implement non emergency "311" phone numbers and design Web pages, while others learned ways to make communities safer.

Wherever did summer go?

It's so hard to believe that summer is quickly coming to a close. It seems just yesterday the kids were reveling in the rings of the final school bell and now here the stores are advertising their Back-to-School Sales.

It can't be, we still have so much to do on our list. This has been a unique summer in the fact that the girls are finally getting to the age where a days outing doesn't mean packing diaper bags and strollers and play pens and bottles and bottles and bottles. Now we just have to make sure they have all visited the bathroom and have shoes on, and then we load them up. The nicest part of having a van is everyone gets a window seat and nobody has to sit right next to anybody.

I'm still waiting for the day though, when every excursion doesn't have to hold a job for each child. Even walking down to the mailbox requires some quick dividing of duties on my part. One opens the mailbox, one pulls the mail out, one closes the mail box, and one gets to carry the mail home. The creative side of me blossoms in these instances. To all you stay-at-home moms who are feeling frustrated and homebound with your young children, toddlers, and infants—it does get easier.

It seems in my haste though, to live each summer day to its maximum potential I overlooked printing the July birthday list and here it is the end of July already. So without any further ado, Happy Birthday you July babies. I hope you received some great gifts: Yasmine Bessette, Travis Bies, Julia Brown, Carl Dunfrund Jr., Nicole Dykiel, Lisa Falcone, Melissa Halvey, Katie Hartl, Kjersten Martens, Billy Miller, Ashley Moser, Teri Mozal, Ed Mulcahy, Helen Olechny, Deanna Olenick, Michael Perrine, Gina Rossi, Jenny Santiemmo, Bonnie Tybor, Dan Tybor Sr., and Christian Vogel. Now seeing as the month

JINGLE FROM PRINGLE

Lynn Pringle

August is upon us, I figured it would be wise to print the August birthday list right away so I don't overlook these birthday people.

Happy Birthday

Those of you who are celebrating birthdays this month might want to cut out the article and place it in an inconspicuous place for all to see—like the refrigerator with your name highlighted. Happy Birthday to all you August babies: Donna "My mom is a line dance nut" Bergl, "Mr." Ray Brausam, Kelly "do we have to move" Bryant, Katie Brown, Mary "Kindergarten-bound" DeBoer, "Uncle" Dennis DeBoer, Tami Edelman, Barbara "My mom is a line dance nut too" Filipis, Kristin Franzen, Steven Franzen, Shahnaz Hansen, Nina Hurmis, Bobby Klean, Jill Konkel, Paige Majewski, Chris Marquart, Sammy Mohr, Marlene Olsen Jr., Bill "the Tile Man" Seamon, Mallory Sinkovec, Cale Sterbenz, Jennifer Svaboda, Matt Vogel, and Alicia Wojtowicz—

And one final note: Our sincerest sympathy to the entire DeBoer family as they deal with their grief over the passing of the family's pillar of strength, Gordie. Know we all feel your loss and share in your sorrow. Gordie was an extraordinary person and will be greatly missed by all who had the honor and privilege of knowing him.

And so goes another "Jingle from Pringle."

RL's DeBeck tells of Team USA

Last week the 1997 Women's Under 19 Team USA won the gold medal in the World Championships, and Round Lake girls basketball coach John DeBeck led the team to victory. DeBeck is an important figure in local basketball, and his involvement in such an international event made him a prime candidate as a guest columnist.

As girls varsity basketball coach at Round Lake High School, and with 13 years of basketball coaching experience, I have had the opportunities to coach some great players, win a few championships, and have many cultural and educational experiences both on and off the court. Yet, the past two weeks with the 1997 edition of Team USA are, without a doubt, the greatest two weeks of basketball coaching I have ever experienced.

Many people do not realize just how special an event this was for me. Having coached varsity basketball, softball and volleyball over the last 13 years, our title-game win over an excellent Mexico squad (86-71) was my 825th varsity win. Even more special was the fact that it was accomplished with Mindy Wagner, who has played with my summer team, the Wisconsin Streamliners, for the last three years. Her parents are like my second family, and I owe my career to her, because back in 1995 I almost walked away from the game I love so much. It was her desire to be coached by me and become the very best that kept me in the game. We spent thousands of hours in the gym at Jefferson High School (Wisc.), and needless to say, we hugged and cried before the title game with Mexico—it was the most emotional moment of my career. I can fill her spot, but never fill her shoes.

I feel we have a lot of success in the future with Round Lake Girls Basketball. Many of my student-athletes will tell you how important they are to me as people first, and players second. Team USA saw that from the first day. I want each season to be a great all-around experience for my players. I have found over the years that the more fun I create for them, the harder they will work for me.

From the day Team USA arrived to the time they departed, not a one of them was selfish; not a one was less than a total team player. Oftentimes, when one puts the best with the best, the egos show through, and stats become more important to the individual than the team. Team USA had one goal in mind: win the gold. Even when we trailed in the second half of the championship game, we knew we would emerge victorious.

This is the type of attitude I hope to create for Round Lake Girls Basketball. Excitement, camaraderie, love, teamwork, dedication, desire, and attitude. I hope we can have the opportunity to bring the 1998 World Championships back here. I hope this year's event now has everyone pumped for the regular season. I hope our community will offer increased support for our youth programs in grades K-8, and the school district, school board, and administration will allow me to continue to build our program for the girls in the way I know will make it a success every season. It will not happen overnight, but I am excited about the foundation we have set.

To the dozens of volunteers who helped with the world championships, I thank you one and all!

IAABC finds a success in Gurnee

By STEVE PETERSON
Staff Reporter

Although both teams were ousted in the heat of Saturday morning, Lake Villa "A" and Antioch teams both had similar views about the future.

They would like to see the Sandy Koufax IAABC 13-14 site for the state tourney remain at O'Plaine Park in Gurnee.

"Gurnee did a fantastic job. We visited Six Flags Great America and used Gowe Beach," said Bill Straub, assistant coach for Lake Villa "A".

The Lake Villa team was eliminated by the Chicago Crusaders 4-2.

A regional spot in Charlotte, Mich. was at stake for the 13-14 year old teams. Squads from Richmond to Chicago came to Gurnee's first state baseball tournament.

A 14-member board of directors organized the tournament. It included special features such as home-run hitters receiving hot dogs and pop. Former Warren High students Eric and Scott McCann sang the national anthem during opening-night ceremony.

"It was a great community effort. We had 20 adults come out to volunteer and they were not involved in Gurnee Boys Baseball," said organizer Glenn Chesser.

"Gurnee was a terrific host," said Antioch coach Mike Perrone.

The Illinois Amateur Assn. Baseball Congress chose Gurnee and two other sites as state tournament locales.

Lake Villa "A" was among several squads which were 2-2.

"The pitching is much better. We are facing the top kids in Illinois. There is a lot more control pitchers here," said Straub.

center fielder Pete Cole keyed the defense. Ted Damos and Justin Seedoff led the hitters. Jeff Norwick pitched a shutout in a 2-0 win over Gurnee. The over win was a 10-run onslaught behind pitcher Peter Cole.

Ryan Pendergast is head coach for Lake Villa and assistants Bill Schular and Jim Fischer guided the team.

Antioch was 2-2 but had a chance to advance to the championship on Sunday until a 13-2 loss to Waukegan.

The two runs were accounted for by a long home run by Erick White.

"I am very proud of the team. We were 15-13 as 13-year-olds and 26-10 this year. The things we were able to do at the end of this year like cut-offs and run-down plays were what they do in high school," said Antioch coach Mike Perrone.

Erick White, whose brother Brandon is also on the team, had five home runs. Mike Perrone led the team in doubles and had 35 RBIs. Mike Perrone went 4-4 with three RBIs in a 9-3 win over Lake Villa "B."

Antioch and Lake Villa players will be contributing to the freshmen team at Antioch High next spring.

As for the host team, Jeff Knighon's crew was 0-2 but capped off a 22-5 season. They were third place in the Mike's Memorial League.

"It was an excellent experience for the kids. They came together well as a team," said Knighon.

Gurnee lost to Niles 8-5 and to Antioch.

Gurnee pulled off two double plays as shortstop Russ Schaibly and second baseman Matt Leppala teamed with first basemen Sam Bigger and Ashton Hughes.

Schaibly led in average. Other consistent hitters were Mike Bowman and Biggers.

Team USA wins gold

Team USA wins gold medal at NAYB World Championships at Round Lake High

By BRENDAN O'NEILL
Sports Editor

Team USA was again the odds-on favorite to repeat as gold medalists at the 1997 Under 19 Women's Basketball World Championships at Round Lake High School.

And, to no one's surprise, Team USA won the gold medal for the third-straight year, beating Mexico 86-71 in the championship game. Canada defeated Iceland 62-57 for third place, and the Cayman Islands downed Antigua to capture fifth.

Round Lake High's girls basketball coach, and Team USA coach John DeBeck, said that the girls did not play their best basketball, but played well enough to win.

"I've noticed that over the last two years, the girls are so used to relying on their athletic ability, they sometimes forget to concentrate on the fundamentals," said DeBeck. "They can compensate so much with their athletic ability, that they might not block out or move their feet on defense."

That being said, DeBeck noted that this year's version of Team USA was the tightest-knit group he has been around—on or off the court.

"This team didn't have any attitude at all," said DeBeck. "No one worried about their stats at all."

Stats did not matter for Team USA, just the goal of winning the gold medal, but DeBeck noted some of the standouts on the USA all-star team.

Offensively, DeBeck acknowledged Natasha Pointer and Sharae Mansfield, who each carried a near 20-point per game average. Defensively, Pointer and Mindy Wagner stood out with their play. As far as all-around play is concerned, DeBeck liked the no-nonsense attitude of Rachel Bryan.

Four of the Team USA standouts were joined by some international players on the All-Tournament Team. In consists of: Zena Davis, Cayman Islands; Eria Reynisdottir, Iceland; Jade Timol and Karen Papadopolous, Canada; Elizabeth Molina, Tayne Ramirez, Brendan Bastida, and Sonia Ortega, Mexico; Bryan, Pointer, Mansfield, and Allison Clark, USA. Pointer was named tournament MVP for her outstanding play.

DeBeck said that he would love another chance to host the world championships, but noted that many factors have to be worked out for that to happen. Also, DeBeck was surprised at the relatively low fan turnout over the week-long tournament.

"We had good attendance for the championship game," said DeBeck. "But we sent out twenty to sixty faxes a day, and nobody else (besides Lakeland and a few others) really decided to give it a look. If we want to do it again next year, we'll need some increased support."

DeBeck did say that the foreign teams all seemed to have a great time, and the response from the foreign coaches was very positive.

Rain wins two at Wilmot Raceway

Race fans and competitors were given a second week to talk about one of the most exciting sprint car features in the history of Premier Racing Productions Wilmot Speedway.

That was because Mother Nature was the only weekend winner as heavy severe thunderstorms wiped out the two days of action scheduled for the one-third mile clay oval both Saturday and Sunday, July 26 and 27.

Severe thunderstorms with high damaging winds struck the vicinity of the Kenosha County Fairgrounds facility just prior to time trials on July 26. A total of 82 open wheel cars including 47 Budweiser Star Trac Springs filled the pit area, but were forced to quickly load and vacate when the storms struck.

Overnight heavy thunderstorms and continued morning-long rains which continued past noon on July 27 forced Wilmot officials to call off the planned July 27 program, marking the seventh weather cancellation this season.

As a result, fans and competitors alike still are buzzing about the highly competitive July 19 feature battle between winner Troy Hepfner of Sussex and runner up Dave Hanna of Grayslake for the exciting victory in the 25 lap "King of Wisconsin Spring Challenge" Round 1, sponsored by J and L Oil and Miller Lite.

The pair battled wing to wing throughout the final 19 circuits, with four official lead changes included among at least a dozen times the pair swapped the top spot with Hepfner working the wall-rubbing rim riding high line while Hanna stayed with the low inside groove.

The pair are poised and ready for a rematch on Thursday, Aug. 7 when the hometrack Star Trac sprints take on the Interstate Racing Assn. Top guns in Round II of the Challenge Series billed as "The Main Event."

Both Hepfner and Hanna are looking for the challenge of taking on the IRA regulars including current IRA pointleader Donny Goeden of Kewaunee and five time IRA champion and 1990 Wilmot titleist Joe Roe of Kenosha who placed third in the opening round "A" main.

Goeden was involved in an early race accident, which sent him to the pit area and a last place finish in the 20 car "A" main.

A state high 61 car sprint car count was on hand at Wisconsin's Sprint Car Racing Capitol. Wilmot boasts a nation leading 37 car count average last season, and currently holds a national leading 43 car weekly average.

Wilmot Speedway will host the final round of the series on Thursday, Aug. 7 with an all-sprint car only program featuring gates opening at 5 p.m. time trails at 6:30 p.m. and racing following.

The Star Trac regulars will have a final tune-up for the Challenge on Aug. 2 featuring Budweiser Star Trac Springs, IMCA modifieds and WIM-SA mini-sprints. Gates open at 5 p.m. with time trials at 6:15 p.m. and racing to follow.

For information, contact the track office at 395-0500, the trackside racelines at (414) 862-2446 or 838-RACE, or on the World Wide Web at www.racingonline.com/wilmot.

Bonding, international play sparked NAYB world championships

Dave Wagner was working the videocamera carefully situated on the top row of bleachers at Round Lake High.

He was talking one of his favorite subjects, basketball, with friend Don Stewart.

Down the way, a local basketball fan who met Team USA members at a local restaurant, waved a US flag as the home team crushed Canada in a semi-final game.

Such were the scenes repeated throughout the run at the North American Youth Basketball hosted world champions for under 19 girls. Team USA defended its title for a third straight year, over Mexico, but five days of memories did not end until late Sunday.

"It is a great first step - something to build on. Next year there could be more teams. It is a chance to play the game and meet new friends," Wagner said.

Magner's daughter, Mindy, from Jefferson, Wisconsin, was a reserve on the Team USA. She will play for Loyola University next year and Bulls items her father won in a raffle should help her fit right into the Chicago scene.

Breaking through cultural barriers and bonding were part of the week. Magner recalled with pleasure a group photo of about 40 players from various countries.

As for the hoops, Team USA downed Canada 101-51 in the semifinal round. After a Bulls-like introduction, Team USA quickly pulled ahead to dominate by halftime.

"We all clicked tonight. We got our shots to go in," said Sarah Pratt of Team USA.

Pratt, from Pleasant Grove, Utah, will remember the tourney as well as her two state championship teams.

Natasha Pointer of Chicago led the way with 23 points against Canada and Pratt added 16 in the semis.

"It is great to see other teams. You realize how blessed you are to have the coaching you do. I have always had laid-back coaches," she said.

"The defense picked up in the second half. We were trying to go containing them and letting them make a mistake," said Team USA mentor John DeBeck.

DeBeck said the tourney was a success as players from Antigua to Iceland enjoyed such local activities as Six Flags Great America, jet skiing and shopping at Gurnee Mills.

"This is the best players each country has to offer," said DeBeck.

One player sidelined for the tournament is Kristy Nichols. The senior this fall at Round Lake injured a wrist but the injury is not believed to be serious.

Chance of a lifetime

Hard work and ability land horseman from Oregon the opportunity to train with the best at Tempel Farms

By ELIZABETH EAKEN
Staff Reporter

Bill Clements shoveled out barns, worked grueling construction jobs and dropped out of college, all for the love of horses.

This dedicated 21-year-old then moved across the country, leaving his beloved dog and family behind, to embark on an adventure, becoming a working student at Tempel Farms.

He traveled to Old Mill Creek from his hometown, Newberg, Ore., in March, 1996. When he arrived in the Midwest, Clements got his first impression of Tempel Farms. He said he didn't really know much about the farm before arriving, explaining he's always been a "gung-ho person" and didn't look back.

"I was very impressed with the facility and with the horses. I've never been around a place with this many high quality horses. You walk in here and every horse is beautiful," he said.

The story of how Clements came to Tempel Farms is amusing, because he and Roberta Williams, director of program development for the Lipizzans, both had different versions to tell.

He explained it began when he went to buy a saddle from Connie Micheletti, operator of a stable and a tack retail and catalog business in Oregon. Micheletti had struck up a relationship with Tempel Farms, bringing her Lipizzan to Old Mill Creek occasionally for dressage training.

"She rode dressage and I decided to start taking lessons from her, basically to help my dressage for my eventing and started liking it more and more," he said.

Karl Mokolka, a trainer at Tempel Farms, now retired, went to Micheletti's stable a couple times a year to offer clinics. Clements began taking group lessons with Mokolka, a 14-year veteran of the Vienna Riding School, then moved into private lessons with him during the clinics.

Unbeknownst to Clements, Micheletti was promoting him to Williams, in the hopes of getting him a position at the farm.

"She had been after me for almost a year," Williams said. "She said she had this kid working for her and she couldn't give him what he needs."

Williams explained it is rare for working student positions to open because "working students don't leave."

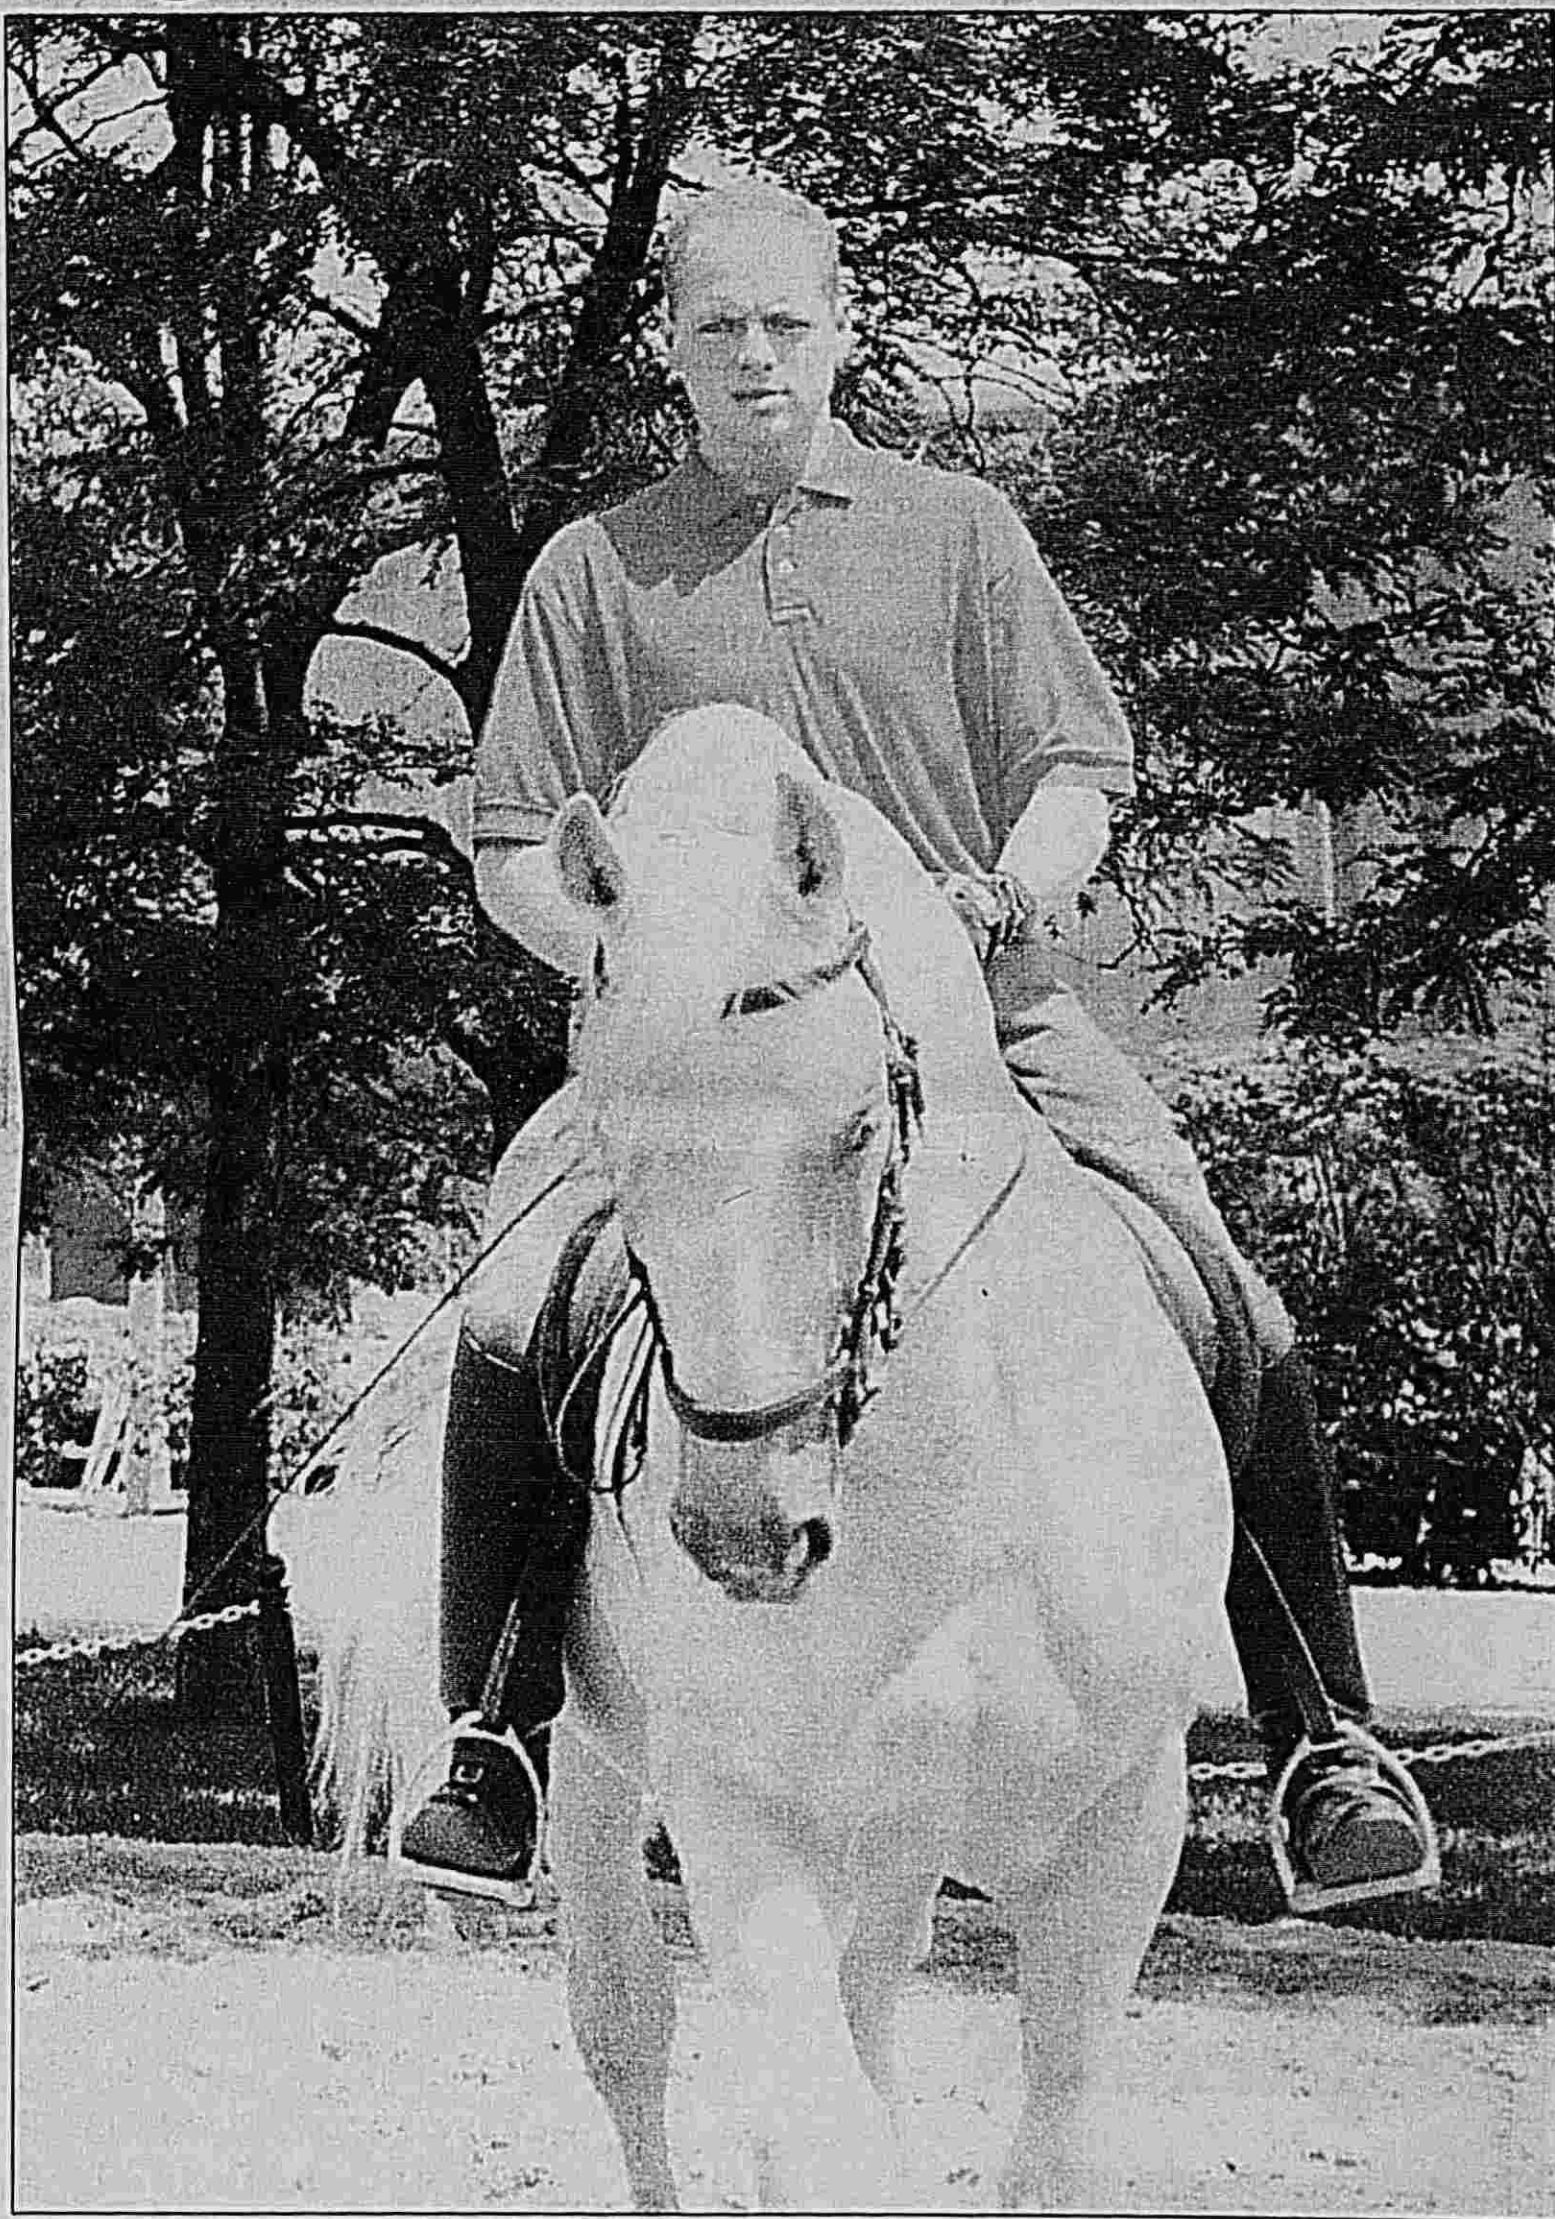

In the mean time, Micheletti took a videotape of Clements telling him there was a possibility of a position opening at Tempel Farms and it would be worthwhile for his career to send a video of himself riding.

"I had this impression from the moment she started talking to me that you were hanging on there with hopes of word from above saying 'yes you can go,'" Williams told Clements, as they laughed about the way things evolved.

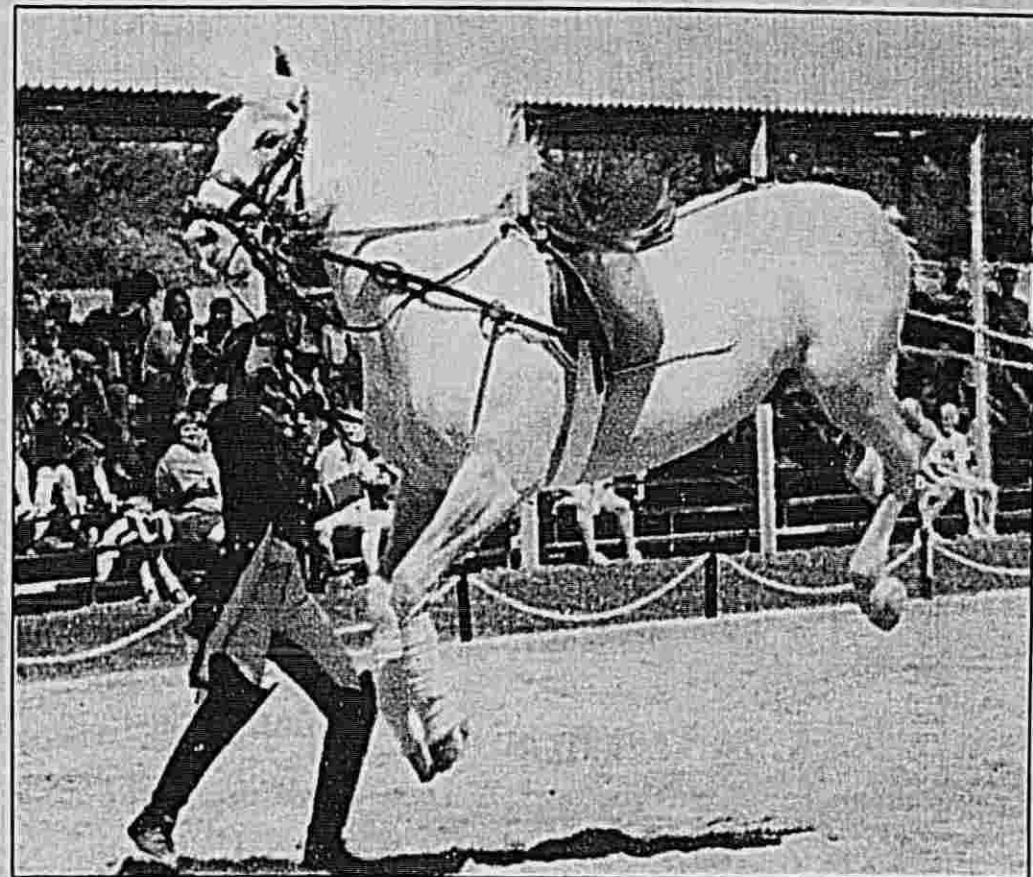

"Connie knew I was that ambitious, but come to think of it she probably did not want me to get overly high hopes," Clements hypothesized.

Eventually, a student left and Clements got his opportunity. Looking back, Williams said, when she saw his videotape there was something so eager about him that made her think he was the right person for the opening.

"He must have washed the bottom of his boots and the horses feet," she marveled about his appearance in the video. "I told my husband 'I think he'll be a hard worker and he's already done college.' My senses said he's very

by JIM WARNKEN, PRESIDENT
NORTH STAR TRAVEL, INC.

There isn't anything more disappointing than getting sick on your vacation. Here are some tips to help avoid illness while traveling.

Pre-trip planning is your first step to a healthy trip.

Immunizations, though seldom required anymore, should be gotten well in advance. Certain shots can cause adverse side effects which are better chanced while still at home, than on your trip.

Stock up on frequently used pharmaceutical products such as aspirin, stomach aids, etc. Band-Aids are not only valuable for cuts, but also for the inevitable blisters which will occur on feet not used to excessive walking.

If you take medication on a regular basis, check with your doctor to see if the dosage should be adjusted for altitude, long plane flights, or unusual climates.

If you suffer from motion sickness, your doctor can prescribe a type of patch worn behind the ear. However, I have had excellent experience with a non-drug item called a "Sea-Band". It's a band worn around the wrist and exerts pressure on an acupuncture point.

"Don't drink the water" is still good advice even if the trip is just to Florida. Sensitive stomachs will find normally harmless bacteria in certain water supplies will do some real nasty things. This also applies to ice cubes in bar drinks. Freezing does not kill bacteria, nor does alcohol.

Canned pop, hot coffee and tea are your safest drinks. Avoid dairy products in any form. Pasteurization is still not practiced worldwide.

What health problem has ruined more vacations than any other? Sunburn. The sun is much stronger in Florida than back in the Midwest. Higher altitudes can also play a factor in sunburn, something to remember in Reno.

Common sense and a little planning will assure a healthy vacation.

Third Annual Lake County Folk Festival this weekend

By SPENCER SCHEIN
Staff Reporter

Folk music aficionados from all over the area are expected to attend The Third Annual Lake County Folk Festival: Music By the Lake, taking place Sunday, Aug. 3, from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. at Paulus Park, northeast of Routes 12 and 22, in Lake Zurich.

"It's (going to be) a wonderful, relaxing day that has something for everyone," said Kate Moretti, who with Dan Zahn are co-founders and organizers of the event; Alex McDougall, president of the Lake County Folk Club, is assisting with the organizing as well.

Eight bands and one dancing troupe are scheduled to perform on the main stage throughout the day. They include headliner Claudia Schmidt, Joel Mabius and Tricia Alexander. Returning performers include Mark Dvorak, originally of Wauconda, Bill Robinson & Friends, and Small Potatoes, a husband and wife duo that is sweeping the nation.

"They are sort of rising stars," Moretti said.

Other main stage performers include Inland Tern, the Baal Tinne School of Chicago with students performing Irish music under the direction of Noel Rice, and the McNulty Irish Dancers.

The Lake County Folk Festival Club and Lake Zurich Dulcimer Club will both have separate stages.

The festival is more than just hearing music performed by others, and is better than attending a concert, Moretti said.

"It is not like going to a concert where you sit 50 rows back. You are right up close and personal and it really helps," she said. "You can see the fingers fly and really appreciate the musicianship."

People from all over the area are expected to come and watch and join in the festivities. Eight individuals from as far away as New York, Kansas and Texas will perform in the First Annual Singer-Songwriter Competition. Each is a finalist chosen from hundreds of applicants. They will each perform two songs on the main stage from 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. in hopes of winning three cash prizes and the chance to perform at next year's festival.

"We are really excited about that," Moretti said.

Other performing areas include a Theme Stage meant to demonstrate various styles of music, a Teaching Stage featuring a hands on instructional workshop, and a Song Circle Tent, where people can drop in and join in with the singing, teach a song, sing for the group, or watch and listen, Moretti said.

CRITIC'S CHOICE

'My Fair Lady' is 'lover-ly'

She finally got it, is cause for celebrating with Eliza Doolittle played by Kelly Bradshaw, Professor Higgins, Fran Jansta; and Col. Pickering, Peter Pintozzi; in PM&L's "My Fair Lady." Submitted photo

"Very nice." "Great show!" "I loved it!" were just a few of the comments heard while leaving the performance of "My Fair Lady," at the PM&L Theatre, 877 Main St. in Antioch.

The brilliant musical comedy production of "My Fair Lady," with book and lyrics by Alan Jay Lerner, and music by Frederick Loewe, closes the 36th season for PM&L Theatre.

The story takes place in London, 1912 when a Cockney flower girl is discovered by Professor Higgins and, with the help of Col. Pickering, the project to transform Eliza Doolittle into a "fair lady" begins. (Higgins and Pickering study the sounds and dialects of languages). With the promise of new clothes, a beautiful home to stay in and all the chocolates she can eat, the fun begins!

The music, with familiar songs like "Wouldn't It Be Lovely," "I Could Have Danced All Night," and "On the Street Where You Live," singing, dancing, and wonderful costumes is sure to make theatre goers forget about the summer heat and humidity.

Eliza, played fantastically well by Kelly A. Bradshaw, of Westmont, moves into Professor Higgins' home to begin working on her voice. Day after day, week after week, they practice vowel sounds, rhymes and poems.

The eccentric Professor

Higgins, played by Fran Jansta of Antioch, is about to give up when the audience hears, "The rain in Spain stays mainly on the plain!" Col. Pickering, played by Peter Pintozzi of Island Lake, begins to dance and cheer "By Jove, I think she's got it!"

The audience is having a lot of fun watching the transformation of Eliza as she makes her first grand appearance at Ascot to watch the horse racing. Oohs... and Ahhs... are heard throughout the audience as the cast appears in authentic 1912 gowns, large feathered hats, the men in tails, top hats, complete with walking canes. It is quite obvious that the entire cast is truly having fun playing their roles, with the accents, costumes and teasing each other—even when a small line is forgotten.

The talented cast also includes: Mark Badtke of Genoa City, Wis., plays Alfred P. Doolittle; James Mahr Jr. of Trevor, Wis., plays Freddie Eynsford-Hill; Dee Finley of Round Lake as Mrs. Pearce; Dianne Hosken of Lindenhurst as Mrs. Higgins; Marian Clark of Libertyville as Mrs. Eynsford-Hill; Bill Finley of Round Lake as Jamie; and Randy Margison of Round Lake Park as Harry.

Chorus members are Cathy Miller of Salem, Wis.; Colleen Griffith of Bristol, Wis.; Christine Jones of Lindenhurst; Elizabeth Clark of Libertyville; Michele Irvin of Palatine; Josh St. John of Wonder Lake; Scott Badtke of Genoa City; Steve Smith of Round Lake Beach; and Joanne Sytsma and Bruce Weise of Antioch.

"My Fair Lady's" director is Gigi Willding of Antioch, Randy Margison of Round Lake Park, music director; and Alice Byrne of Gurnee, choreographer.

A truly fun romance, "My Fair Lady," keeps the audience captured during its three hour performance.

A sure way to beat the summer heat is to put PM&L's "My Fair Lady" on your list of must see. The theatre's air conditioning is working great! Remaining performances are Aug. 1, 2, 8, 9, 15 and 16 a 8 p.m. and Aug. 3, 10 and 17 at 2:30 p.m.

For ticket reservations, call 395-3055.—By Roselle Love

What next? Chain letters from China?

I hate to sound paranoid, but I think the rest of the world has our number.

Though we like to refer to America as the land of "get rich quick," it might be more accurate to refer to us as "America, where a sucker is born every minute." Let's face it—most of us, at one time or another, have fallen prey to some sort of scam, legal or otherwise, that promises to make us millions—swamp land, pyramid schemes, lotteries, or letters from some guy named Ed McMann.

Not that I'm saying we're easy. We have, after years of falling for this stuff, finally started to get a little wiser, maybe even right in the middle of licking stamp No. 10 for the latest chain letter, when we suddenly stop and say to ourselves, "This stamp glue is making me nauseous!"

Why, even I have become more cynical, if you can believe that. I now hang up on anyone who calls and begins the conversation by mispronouncing my last name (sorry, Mom). In fact, it would be pretty difficult to sell me anything at all over the phone these days.

But though you can no longer sell me swamp land in Florida, a part of me still wants to believe (admit it—many of you do, too) that someone, someday, for no reason at all, will give me millions of dollars for doing...well, nothing.

Apparently, this type of

LIFE'S A BEAR

Donna Abear

"American optimism" (to put it kindly) has not gone unnoticed by the international community. Which explains why my husband recently received an air mail letter from Nigeria.

We don't have space in this column for the entire letter, but here is the basic message, from someone named Engr. Adebayo Williams of Lagos, Nigeria:

"We are members of the Special Committee on the Budget and Planning of the Ministry of Petroleum..."

"With our positions, we have successfully secured for ourselves... $28,700,000...through undeclared wind-fall from sales of Crude Oil during the Gulf War."

The letter went on to say that they needed someone trustworthy to provide a bank account into which the money would be transferred. In return, the person providing this account (meaning my husband) would receive 20 percent of the money, of $5,740,000.

At first reading, this sounded like a great deal. Heck, the most we ever got in the past for opening a bank account was a toaster! But then that little spoil-sport voice inside me, the one that calls itself "common sense," had to speak up and ruin everything:

"$5,740,000? Just for opening a bank account? WHAT'S THE CATCH???"

So I re-read the letter several times and realized there were too many negative points:

1. These guys were politicians. In America, politicians are known for taking our money, not giving it.

2. What exactly is "undeclared wind-fall"? Sounds an awful lot like "embezzlement" to me.

3. They claimed they have reliable information concerning my husband's "reputable and well-organized company." I find that really hard to believe (especially the "organized" part). Sure, my husband is a great carpenter/contractor, and he's probably the most honest person I've ever known. But I just don't think that people sit around in Nigeria and say, "That guy Brandon Abear—not only does he build nice houses, but he'd give you the shirt off his back!"

So, I guess we're just going to have to take a pass on that $5,740,000. It just doesn't sound right. But I'm sure they'll find someone else in America willing to take large sums of foreign money.

Of course, that's always easier during an election year.

MOVIE PICK

Ford gets our vote despite script

The promos for Harrison Ford's latest film, "Air Force One," had us looking forward to what looked like the best of a long list of summer action thrillers.

Ford is one of film's enigmas in that he seems incapable of making a bad film. In fact, we can't think of a Ford picture we didn't like. That's because he doesn't fit into the larger than life molds cast by Arnold, Sly, etc.

Like Bruce Willis, he seems to be an average man in extraordinary circumstances, but over and above Willis' smart aleck exterior, Ford is everyman. We really like him. He is us doing all the things we dream of doing. He is the John Wayne of the '90s.

In "Air Force One," he is an extremely powerful us, the us we would dream of being if we were President of the United States. No glib politico, but a genuine patriot, and an honest to goodness family man, with the guts and agility of a super hero.

Of course this is ridiculous, and so are parts of this movie's script when it gets as unbelievable as an action thriller has to be. Despite the moments that seem tongue in cheek enough to be lifted from a Leslie Nielsen spoof, like the first daughter cutely hugging her dad and telling him she's sure everything will be alright in the midst of chaos that would have the normal teenager screaming hysterically, daddy or no daddy.

Of course no human being, more or less an out of shape politician, would be able to cling to the airplane's open hatch like Ford does. Then no one could have walked through glass in bare feet like Willis did in "Die Hard," or had the strength to knock out a world champ after being beat to a pulp like Sly was. We won't even bring up the impossibilities accomplished by our Terminator friend. But we wanted them all because we wanted to.

Ford is even human enough to betray a presidential policy in order to save his wife and child, a betrayal we can all identify with.

Gary Oldman is excellent as the leader of a gang of Russian terrorists who take over the President's plane as it leaves Russia after a presidential visit, in an attempt to hold the United States' first family hostage to gain the release of a cold war Russian general. We almost have sympathy for this villain who in his own right is a patriot for the other side.

Who would have thought that Ms. Fatal Attraction, better known as Cruella DeVill, could be a believable first female vice president. Glenn Close displays the polish and strength in this role that would get my vote.

There's plenty of excitement, plus lots of suspense and reasons to cheer, so what more could we ask for the price of a movie ticket?

We give "Air Force One," rated "R," four out of five stars, with slight subtractions for the few times we couldn't help groaning, "Aw pulease!"—By Gloria Davis earnest," she related.

When she called to offer him the position, he asked how soon he could come, not how soon they wanted him to come. Progress for Clements has come quickly. He is the first working student to ever debut in the "Airs Above Ground" segment of the Lipizzan performances. This is truly a privilege, Williams said, because the farm is the only place in the U.S. that a trainer can learn the Airs Above Ground movements.

Clements works with the farm's world class horse trainers learning everything he can, from preparing the footing, which is the performance arena surface, to the art of training and riding the Lipizzans in classic dressage style of the Spanish Riding School of Vienna, to having responsibilities for the daily care of the horses.

"Sometimes our working students don't move along as quickly as Bill," Williams said.

As a kid, Clements never dreamed of making a full-time career out of working with horses. It all started, when at the age of 10, Clements took a riding lesson through the Newberg park department his father, Don, headed, and got hooked. When he was a little older taking a job in a barn, feeding and grooming the horses, helped pay for his lessons and later, when old enough, he worked construction.

"When I really started getting into it, I was about 12-years-old," he explained.

His first horse "Oreo," a Pinto, was a present from his parents. He was required to meet them halfway with the expenses and he had to keep his grades up. He started competing in three day eventing when he was around 17-years-old, changing over from competitive jumping, because he liked the difficulty of dressage and the technicality of it.

At this time he was competing in a low level of three-day eventing which involves three days of riding events, dressage, stadium and cross country, and led to his interest in dressage.

He has one brother and one sister, but is the only person in his family to take up the sport of riding. It is his mother Elsie, that is his strongest supporter.

"When I was younger, she never missed a lesson, never missed a horse show. She never rode, but loved the horses as much as I did," he explained.

Clements figured he would graduate from college and work to afford his riding hobby. A timely decision led him to his present job.

He attended Oregon State University for about six months. When asked what he was studying, Clements laughed, saying "Not much. I was riding horses and it was one of the reasons I decided that maybe college at that point and time wasn't for me."

At that time, he was boarding his horse at a nearby stable and worked exercising race horses for money. His next move was to Salem, Ore., where he ran a small barn with 12 horses for about a year.

"It was to me kind of a stepping stone to come here," he explained. "This was what I really wanted, to get in a program where I could really learn how to train horses."

Tales of working students who come to Tempel Farms are full of anecdotes of people thoroughly enthralled with horses. These people sometimes leave lucrative jobs, or travel across the country or world, to come to the farm for the chance to work with the horses and learn from the renowned trainers. They aren't always young either. Occasionally there are students in their 30s and 40s who take sabbaticals for the opportunity to work with the Lipizzans and their trainers.

Sometimes the working students move up the ranks at the farm, and others move on when the time is right. If a student is working out and they want to stay, they are welcome.

"If there is an opportunity for them to stay, we're very loyal to the employees," Williams said.

Currently, the farm has four working students. They add to that number in the summer with several temporary positions when the work load increases.

Clements said he now realizes the opportunity that has been handed to him.

"Looking back, I was extremely lucky. I would have spent a lot of years trying to learn what I have here," he said.

Clements and the other working students are given a stipend and most often a place to live. Clements lives in a furnished cabin on the farm. He eventually was able to bring his dog Broc, to the farm and said it wasn't hard to adjust because everyone there bands together like a family; often playing softball on Sundays and going to the movies together.

Clements said he doesn't feel he's missing out on anything in life being so immersed in the horse world.

"I've always been a real animal person. I'm 21 and live with a dog," he said laughing. "I've always liked the company of animals, horses in particular are very special to me."

Clements said he doesn't have a big vision for his future, because he lives from day to day.

"I'll definitely be working with horses. You find a way to make it," he emphasized about the future.

Williams said it's the dream of most people in their world to show at the Grand Prix level, which is at the level of Olympic riding. It is at this level the rider receives their shad belly, a cut away top coat, and top hat. She coaxed Clements into admitting this is something he dreams of.

"It's an honor bestowed on you," Williams explained.

The difficulty of reaching this level is two fold — some riders don't have the talent, but have the money to afford a horse of the caliber needed to compete; whereas others with the ability can't afford the horse which can cost over $15,000.

Clements added "I've always been told if you want to be rich run away from horses."

HOROSCOPE

Aries - March 21/April 20
It's an easy week for you, Aries, as things go smoothly at work. Superiors are pleased with your efforts, and co-workers are eager to help you. As for your family life, things aren't going quite as well. A loved one turns to you for help with a personal problem. Be supportive, but don't overreact.

Taurus - April 21/May 21
Don't get caught up in the heat of the moment at work early in the week. Try to remain calm. While it may seem as if a superior is leaving you out of the loop, he or she really is looking out for your best interest. A close friend introduces you to someone who intrigues you. Enjoy!

Gemini - May 22/June 21
You're at your best this week, Gemini. You breeze through your workload and win praise from the higher-ups. As for your personal life, someone whom you've been interested in finally responds to your advances. Don't stop now — you're sure to win his or her heart.

Cancer - June 22/July 22
Don't let life pass you by this week. Now is your chance to make a move at work and in your love life. A little extra effort from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. can get you noticed. As for that special someone, don't take him or her for granted. Show how much you really care by doing something romantic.

Leo - July 23/August 23
Your loyalty is needed this week, Leo. A close friend comes to you with a serious problem and needs your help. Don't let him or her down. Give your time, effort and support to someone who always has been there for you. It is sure to bring the two of you even closer.

Virgo - Aug 24/Sept 22
While it's not easy for you, Virgo, try not to worry this week. Everything works out for you. You take care of a problem at work and end up being the hero. Superiors notice your efforts. Your personal life moves into high gear when a former significant other returns to the scene. Take it slowly at first.

Libra - Sept 23/Oct 23
Try to maintain a balance in your life this week. Superiors at work will try to keep you in the office to finish a difficult project. Do your best and work diligently, but don't let your job take over your life. You need to relax and spend time with loved ones.

Scorpio - Oct 24/Nov 22
Your possessive nature takes control of you at work early in the week. You won't let anyone help you with an important project. While you get the job done, you end up looking foolish for having done it all yourself. Later in the week, a close friend takes you out for a night on the town. Enjoy!

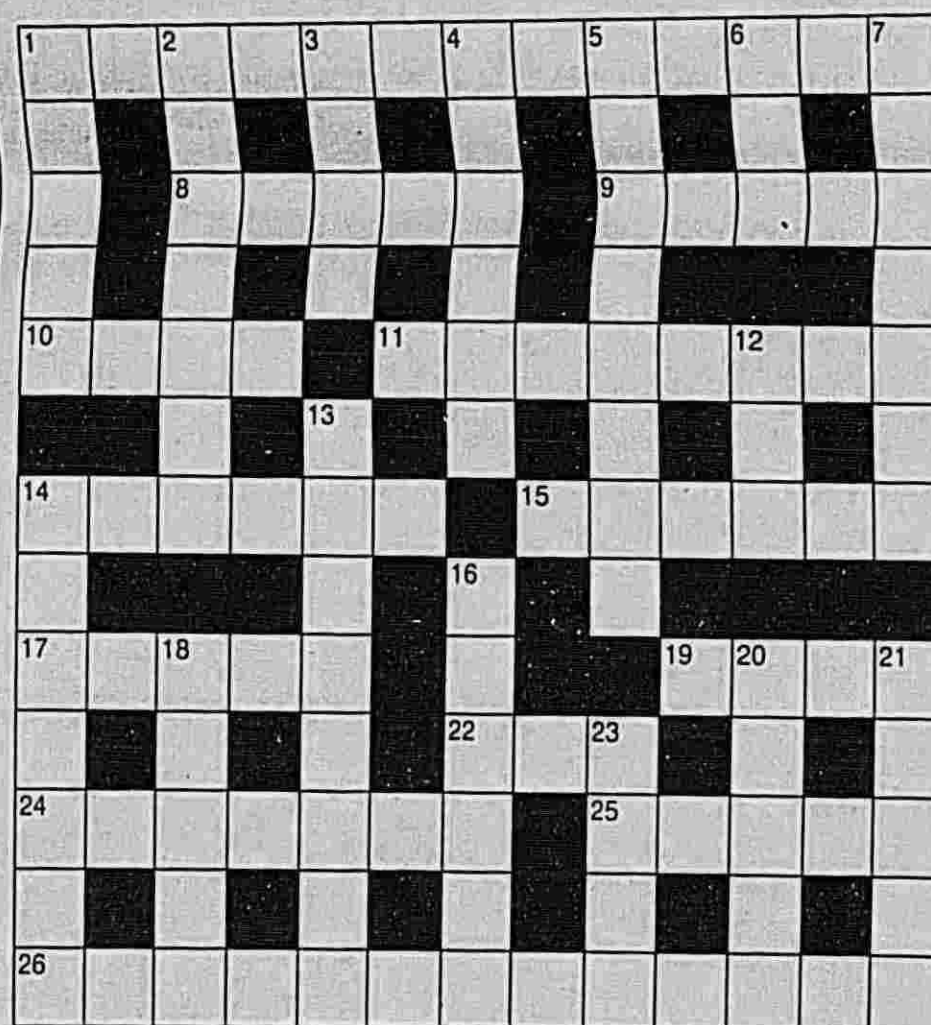

Sagittarius - Nov 23/Dec 21
Try to remain optimistic this week, Sagittarius. There are some problems at work that make co-workers concerned about the company's future. Keep their spirits — and your own — up. Family members turn to you for advice about a gathering. Do your best to help.

Capricorn - Dec 22/Jan 20
Don't let your personal life distract you when you are at work this week. The higher-ups have their eyes on you for a promotion; you must work diligently. However, once the workday is through, revel in a new relationship. That special someone is adding a new dimension to your life.

Aquarius - Jan 21/Feb 18
Be practical early in the week, Aquarius. You can't do everything, and you need to distribute some responsibilities at work and at home. Let co-workers help with an important project, and have loved ones do their fair share. You'll feel better by Friday.

Pisces - Feb 19/March 20
Don't be hard-hearted at work, Pisces. Give a helping hand to a co-worker in need. He or she would do the same for you. When it comes to your love life, take a step back to examine the situation. The person you've been dating wants to get serious. Think about it before making a commitment.

9 degrees competes for Beam/'XRT Tour Spot

By KENNETH PATCHEN
Staff Reporter

A Fox Lake rock band that is teaching themselves the music business and how to play their kind of music is working from a loft in Chicago to build their career. "None of this would be happening if we didn't live in the city," says Tom Bock.

Out of that strategy has come a measure of success for 9 degrees, a band emerging from Fox Lake into a regional spotlight that may provide them a national tour.

The band and strategy plays out at Chicago's Double Door, 1572 North Milwaukee, Friday, August 1, at 9 p.m.

Five bands will play for a chance for one of them to compete further for a national tour sponsored as part of the Jim Beam One Shot to Stardom Music Competition. The contest event is co-sponsored by WXRT-FM radio (93.1).

"We spent a lot of time playing (guitar) together," said Tom Bock, band member and guitar player. Doug White and Tom Bock grew up together in Fox Lake and it was easy to make that personal relationship work for themselves as musicians. They even played baseball together in the Grant Township league.

Douglas White contributes vocals and guitar playing to the band's sound. Joshua Pierce plays drums. Christopher Huddleston plays bass. Except for Christopher, who joined 9 degrees recently, the band mates have known one another since they were 13 years old. Of the current line-up, Bock said "We've been together for six months," and it is quite evident to the three old friends that "Chris is fabulous." He has helped to create a band.

The name of the band is 9 degrees (actually, instead of the word degrees, they use the symbol). Bock wouldn't say how the band came up with the name. "We're keeping it under wraps."

He was equally elusive in describing how the band sounds. At one point he said, "We're a cross-over band." Instead, he invites people to listen to them play.

Other sources are more direct in their descriptions of the group's music. The Jim Beam tour promoters said, "They have been described as a cross between Faith No More and Jane's Addiction." Also, to the folks running the tour contest at Jim Beam, 9 degrees sounds like a potential winner.

The winner of the One Shot to Stardom National Finals will be on a tour bus as a 10-city opening act for major music label bands. The winners will also receive recording studio time and will have 500 compact discs for their use on the tour.

The Fox Lake band will not have to travel far if they are the winning band of five Chicago area bands invited to the Aug. 1 performance. They will merely return to Chicago's House of Blues in early September to compete against four other regional winners from Detroit, Denver, Myrtle Beach, S.C. and New Orleans. First, however, Fox Lake's own must be selected from among these four other Chicago area bands: Big Time Sponge, Shimmer, Pipe Dream, and The Twigs.

When 9 degrees shows up to play on Friday, it will be a first-ever public performance by the group. "The Jim Beam show is our first show out together," Bock said. Previously they have performed for friends in their common loft home near Chicago's Greek restaurant area. They do not have a list of tour credits.

They have produced enough music for their own full-length compact disc, however. It was recorded in their loft in the course of one weekend and does not have a title yet.

It is good that they did have some music on hand. Bock found out about the contest from a clerk at Guitar City where the group was buying speakers. The band had unmixed, unmastered songs on a tape so they quickly put together an entry tape, overnight. "Boom. We got the call," Bock said, "Entering the contest was basically a whim."

Bock speaks well of the Jim Beam people and tour representatives. "They're treating us fabulously," he said. "The whole premise of what they're doing is great."

In terms of what the band is doing these days, this contest is a big part of it. "We've all got a really positive attitude about it. The opportunity is a huge part of what we're doing now."

"We're ready to do it."

The emcee for the contest is WRXT's Richard Milne, host of the Sunday evening radio program "Local Anesthetic" on WXRT. Judges are: Armanda Zapata, producer of music video program JBTV; Steve Hutton, entertainment attorney and owner of Uppercut Management; Dawn DeBias, regional A&R representative for Columbia Records; and, Mark Guarino, music critic for the Daily Herald newspaper.

LaCASA needs volunteers

Interested participants are in keeping Lake County's school children safe from the dangers of sexual assault. The Lake County Council Against Sexual Assault is currently accepting applications from area residents interested in serving as Child Assault Prevention (CAP) volunteers assisting LaCASA staff members in conducting personal safety presentations in Lake County preschools, grade schools and junior high schools.

LaCASA provides programs at many Lake County schools, supporting children in their rights to be and stay safe. "When you decide whether this work is for you, please do so with the children in mind," said Jane Hunter, LaCASA's Community Education director. "Evaluate whether you can commit to a non-violent world. Although it is true that we concentrate on prevention, we meet many young victims. Part of our job is to listen, to believe, and to help them. If you work for CAP, you work for children."

Applications will be accepted through Aug. 8 for LaCASA's 40-hour CAP volunteer training which will take place at the new LaCASA/Richard Zacharias Center located at 4275 Grand Ave. in Gurnee. Training classes will be held weekdays from Aug. 19 to 29, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

LaCASA also needs volunteers to work with their 24-hour Hotline Advocacy, Court Advocacy, and Police and Legal Advocacy programs. No experience is necessary, but a deep desire to help those in need is crucial.

For information or to submit an application to be a Child Assault Prevention volunteer, call Jane Hunter, LaCASA's Coordinator of Community Education at 244-1187.

The funds will be used to support NICASA's programs to prevent and treat alcohol and other drug abuse.

More than 220 golfers participated in the event, with about 300 people attending the banquet that followed.

Judy Fried, NICASA's executive director, commended the event's chairman, Dan Morrissey of Abbott Laboratories, and his committee members for their hard work. Volunteer members included Drew Schramm, Kathy White Cohen, Faye Cater, Dan Alvarez, Cindy Simmons, LuAnn Tersar and James Poucher.

Headquartered in Round Lake, the not-for-profit agency also operates clinical facilities in Waukegan and Prairie View.

Ronald McDonald made a magical visit to Good Shepherd Hospital in Barrington and helped bring smiles to an audience filled with special guests. The children and their parents were from the hospital's Pediatric Therapy Centers located in Lake Zurich and Crystal Lake, as well as youngsters who were visiting loved ones in the hospital. The Pediatric Therapy Centers provide a complete range of specialized and rehabilitative services for children from birth through age 18. Ronald gave a free magic show in the lobby, then visited patients throughout the hospital. Each of the visiting children received a coveted Teeny Beanie Baby from the popular clown.—Submitted photo

Can't hear? Here's help

As an audiologist, I know that hearing loss develops so gradually that it's difficult for the person who has it to perceive its presence. The ability to hear soft sounds, high frequency sounds and sounds from a distance is generally that first compromised. A primary complaint of early hearing loss is that speech lacks clarity, that people "can hear but cannot understand."

Instead of recognizing that their hearing may be subtly becoming less sensitive, those with early hearing loss have a tendency to blame their inability to hear on the speaker, the environment or their own lack of concentration.

This tendency to misconstrue, the reason for communication difficulty partially contributes to the disturbing statistic that people with hearing loss wait an average of seven years before seeking help.

Unfortunately, most people who wear hearing instruments wear "old fashioned" hearing aids. Conventional hearing aids indiscriminately amplify all incoming sound. They require a manually operated volume control because the user needs to constantly adjust the level of amplification, trying to find a happy medium between adequately amplifying soft sounds and not overamplifying loud sounds. The end result is that the important soft sounds that provide speech clarity remain under-amplified so that the less important loud sounds can remain at a tolerable level.

Thankfully, programmable hearing solutions have arrived that incorporate sophisticated sound processing computer chips which can return the ability to hear soft sounds to a degree far superior to conventional hearing aids. These new instruments self-adjust, reshuffling all incoming sounds into the person's individual comfort range.

Zoom Microphone technology from Switzerland, sound processing developed by AT and T Bell Laboratories and the new 100 percent digital hearing aid from Denmark all constitute remarkable breaking-throughs.

If you or a loved one has a hearing loss, investigate one of the new high-technology hearing aids. It literally could change a life.

How can we get Little Tommy to behave? Here's one way!

Little Tommy is 4-years-old and has done something wrong. He has used the wall as a canvas for his artistic endeavors. He believes his work is wonderful and thinks that he should do this more often. The response from mom and/or dad is natural and predictable. Anger, correction and disappointment, as it should be. The reaction is usually pretty immediate as well, as it also should be. Tommy is a kid who is pretty used to his routine. Most of it is him stepping in the wrong place at the wrong time. He's used to being yelled at or corrected. It is becoming an identity for him. What happens, however, when Tommy takes his dish from the table and gives it to mom after dinner? The response I hear from most parents about this is... "I didn't want to say anything, because I was afraid if I said it, he would stop doing it." The good, old, "walking on eggshells syndrome." I meet literally hundreds of families each year who feel the same way and while they are not saying anything so the good behavior won't stop, the bad behavior continues ad infinitum.

What am I trying to say here? If you want a child's behavior to change, you need to take a close look at your own behavior in the process. I am not trying to berate anyone for correcting a child's behavior as anyone who knows me, knows that I absolutely believe in discipline and structure. What I am saying, however is that sometimes what we do naturally does more to get in the way of a child performing good behavior, the exact opposite of what we hope for.

Yelling and punishing is natural. Complimenting is not. We need to think to compliment. We need to go out of our way to compliment. We just need to react from our gut to chastise. Think about that for a minute. In order to let a child know we like about what he or she did takes thought and goes against our natural grain. I will tell you here, though, that letting a child know all the time, what you expect and what you like to see is the cornerstone of building good behavior.

Of all the kids I have met (and I've met a lot), I haven't met one who, when given the right road map, didn't fall right into place. Kids want to behave. If we continue to give attention only when they misbehave, we are helping them to develop an identity around that misbehavior. They learn that getting attention means being bad! It is important to break out of that as soon as possible since identities like that can become hazardous to one's health.

It's also perfectly okay to use rewards as long as you are using a structured program. I get asked this all the time. I love it when I hear someone refer to a reward as a bribe. Since when is working toward EARNING a goal a bribe? Since when is meeting expectations a bribe? Don't most adults work for a goal-salary, etc.? If there was no salary, would they work? Highly doubtful. We all live by this, yet we raise our kids without this future preparation and ask them to live by different standards than the rest of us do. In my mind you either create a child who has the ability and understanding of using self-discipline and working toward something he or she wants, or create a child who feels everything is coming to him or her for free just because he or she exists. To me, choice two is a recipe for failure in childhood and adulthood.

Now, if you consistently give your child things or privileges to get the child off your back, that is a bribe. If, however, the child works for something and accomplishes it, that is a goal. By the way, this is what I believe truly builds self-esteem. A child getting some sort of confirmation that he or she did a good job on his or her own. A confirmation that the child's thoughts and actions were responsible and good.

PARENT'S PLACE

Sherri Singer,

Folks, I know of what I speak. For years, I have been running a behavior program that incorporates this type of thing and let me tell you, you have never seen a child happier or feeling more pride than when he or she has reached a goal on his or her own. Especially when that child is like Tommy, a child who is used to failing in a big way. I meet a lot of Tommys and have yet to meet the one who doesn't respond to being asked to strive. In the majority of cases (in which parents have continued using the material), the changes are permanent. The younger the child, the easier the change.

There is no magic here. Noticing the good stuff and making sure your child knows that you have noticed. These things work. Next time your Tommy or Tomasina (as the case may be) begins to pick up his or her dish, make sure to let him or her know how much that means to you. Make sure he or she knows what makes you happy. He or she will strive to show you again!

Book on Midwest gardens highly recommended

A lovely book came across my desk the other day. It is called "Midwest Gardens" by Pamela Wolfe, photographs by Gary Irving, published by Chicago Review Press. Wolfe is a teacher, botanist, horticulturist and native Midwesterner.

She brings up an interesting point, most books on perennial gardens are written for English or eastern gardens. The Midwestern states are in a class of their own. She focuses on 22 gardens in Minnesota, Wisconsin, Michigan, Indiana, Illinois and Iowa, and has found an incredible variety of gardening styles and environments.

With the Midwestern climate, gardening can be an utmost challenge. Nowhere else are the seasons so distinct, allowing for colorful changes that can be especially dramatic, or eerily subtle, or both. She offers many ideas on how to best cope with our situation. In every section she focuses on the particular gardeners fancy and offers advice on how to achieve similar results. The photos are absolutely beautiful with over 180 of them.

GARDEN JOURNAL

Lydia Huff

I especially enjoyed reading the chapter about Chuck Harris, a fellow who gardens in the inner city of Chicago. He has transformed a city garden into a breathtaking escape—using the gifts of nature to their finest. He has managed to create an environment that totally contrasts with all that surrounds it.

In his "city garden" he uses trellises to soften the garden walls and vines to create a peaceful, flowing design. In Harris' garden he grows trumpet vine, clematis, yellow climbing roses, wisteria, shrub roses and even gets the difficult delphinium to grow over 7 feet tall! He also grows herbs and vegetables among the ornamentals, and has a plan for the entire season. When one species is done performing, another begins.

Winter protection comes in the form of leaves and pine needles, both of which are abundant here. Letting the mulch deteriorate in the garden helps replenish nutrients that are used up by growing plants. Many of the gardeners leave clean up until spring to enjoy plants forms and colors during the winter. The dark thistle shaped seedpods of cone-flowers stand out, giving depth and dimension to the winter landscape.

There are also many gardeners who choose to garden primarily with native plants, among them Pat Armstrong from Naperville. Since 1983 Armstrong has worked to make her one-third acre backyard a prairie, resembling that of the first pioneers encountered here. Today, she has more than 240 species of plants, all native to the Midwest. Among the plants growing in her garden are: switchgrass, black-eyed Susan, prairie cone-flower, purple coneflower, monarda, purple prairie clover, rattlesnake master, and aromatic sumac. Armstrong grows all native roses, that are not troubled by blackspot or other diseases. One bush, the Illinois Rose, grows nearly 5 to 6 feet tall, and as wide! They all bloom from May to June, have pink flowers, and also have bright red-orange berries in late summer and early fall. That makes them attractive throughout the seasons.

Armstrong recommends starting small if you would like to begin a natural landscape, as it is very labor intensive, and adding to it each year. By establishing this unique style of gardening, Armstrong has helped her neighbors learn how a prairie grows. Throughout the book the photos testify that prairie gardening is definitely on the rise.

The author also lists many gardens to visit throughout the Midwest and mail order sources for the many plants featured in her book. I highly recommend this delightful and informative book.

Until next time, peace.

Can you take the heat? Home Depot offers cool ideas

Keeping cool is a priority during the scorching summer months. Whether the goal is to cool an isolated area or the whole house, the experts at The Home Depot can help find effective ways to ward off the heat without spending a bundle.

"This is the time of year when customers want to know the most economical way to cool off their home while keeping their electric bills down," said Earl Young, Home Depot store manager. "There are a number of products which the do-it-yourselfer can install that will make a noticeable difference in both house temperature and air conditioning costs."

The following options are just a few ways to beat the heat this summer.

Ceiling fans

Good for individual rooms and small homes, ceiling fans efficiently circulate air by keeping a constant stream of air blowing toward the floor. Easy to install, ceiling fans are useful during both the summer and winter months. Most models have switches to reverse the direction of the fan blades so air can be blown up or down.

Ceiling fans may be used alone or can be added to enhance a home's existing cooling system. When used with an air conditioner, the breeze circulates the cold air more evenly about a house, making the air conditioner more efficient and saving dollars. Moving air also is easier to cool, making the existing system easier to use.

"Ceiling fans blend in with the decor in any room," said Young, adding that they are known to increase a home's marketability because they keep air conditioning costs to a minimum.

Circulating fans

Also known as high-velocity fans, circulating fans come in a variety of sizes and work well in smaller homes. They come with stands so they can be placed anywhere and positioned at an angle for a variety of functions. For example, a fan can be placed in front of a basement door to remove hot air, or, it can be placed in a window facing out, to blow hot air out of the house. When located in a hallway, a fan can move air throughout an entire house. Another advantage is that a high velocity fan keeps their air conditioner from working overtime on very hot days, which saves money and increases the lifespan of the unit.

Window air conditioners

A broad range of window-mounted air conditioners can be purchased for homes large and small. The smallest unit, at 5,000Btu, is generally used in individual rooms and can adequately cool up to 150 square feet, or an average size bedroom. The largest unit, at 24,000 Btu, can cool homes of up to 1,600 square feet.

The most important factor in deciding what size air conditioner to purchase depends on how many square feet it has to cool.

The most important factor in deciding what size air conditioner to purchase depends on how many square feet it has to cool.

Young also suggests air conditioners be paired with ceiling or circulating fans, since they will make any window unit cool a house more efficiently.

Landscaper gives just that facts

When insects are detected on a plant just about any insecticide will work.

A myth: The most important thing to do is identify the insect. Then find it's most vulnerable or weakest stage in it's life cycle, then apply the proper insecticide. By doing this homework first, less chemicals will need to be applied throughout the year.

Last night it rained a bit so watering of the plants is not important.

A myth: Plants need one-inch of water a week to remain in good health, especially newly transplanted material. Deep watering is preferred and since our soils are heavy in clay, watering once a week for established plantings is good. Newer plants may need a bit more watering the first season.

Pruning should only be done when plants are dormant.

A myth: Some plants may need attention now. Remove cross branching or any branches growing in towards the middle of the plant. Some plants may need to be shaped, and this can be done now. A storm may have broken some branches and they need to be removed and clean cut to keep out insects or disease.

Clay is very bad for plants.

A myth: Clay soils that are broken up into small pieces are beneficial to a plant. Nutrients are now available to the plants when this is done.

Perennial flower gardens need attention.

A fact: Too often people purchase perennial flowers and feel they just keep growing and coming up year after year, and don't need much care. Many perennials will do this, however, with some timely fertilization and care as well as transplanting every three to four years, your plants will show their beauty each season.

We want to buy a pink flowering crab because we love the color pink.

A fact: But what about the other 50 weeks of the year when the plant is not flowering? Many plants show off year-round and this should be considered in the overall concept in a design. They may have a persistent berry, or great horizontal or pendulous branching or ornate bark.

Workouts can work wonders for seniors

Although everyone can benefit from regular exercise, its positive effects are especially profound for older adults, who can exercise their way to improved health—and a longer life.

"Exercise really is the fountain of youth," says physical therapist, at Chicago Institute of Neurosurgery and Neuroresearch (CINN).

Many of the losses in physical and mental function commonly attributed to age are not inevitable, says Kozenko.

In fact, current research indicates that successful aging has less to do with genes and more to do with how people choose to live their lives.

Exercise can reverse effects of aging

"As we age, our bodies undergo quite a transformation, a process that is dramatically accelerated by an inactive lifestyle," explains Kozenko. Such inactivity can result in reduced muscle size, deconditioning of the heart, loss of bone density, loss of range of motion in the joints, and decreased muscle flexibility.

"The good news is," she says, "a balanced exercise regimen that includes cardiovascular conditioning, strength training and stretching can delay these changes and, in some cases, even reverse their effects."

Despite this fact, statistics show that only four out of 10 people exercise regularly.

"Often, the hardest part of an exercise program, especially for those in their golden years, is getting started—and sticking with it," Kozenko says. "The trick is to find activities you truly enjoy. That way, you'll actually look forward to your daily routine. After a few weeks, it may even become habit-forming."

Start out with simple stretches

A good place to start is with a gentle stretching regimen, she says. "This will help restore flexibility to your joints and allow you to move around more freely."

Kozenko recommends a series of easy stretching exercises that target the muscles surrounding the shoulders, hips, lower back, knees and ankles.

These exercises, which Kozenko calls "Simple Stretches for Seniors," require no special equipment and can be done anywhere—at home or at work.

Before stretching, she suggests five minutes of light cardiovascular exercise such as walking or riding a stationary bike to get the muscles warm and help prevent injury. She also emphasizes the importance of proper breathing—and of taking it slow.

"As you begin a stretch, inhale, then exhale as you slowly stretch to the point where you feel resistance but not pain. Don't bounce," she says. "Once you can hold a stretch for 20 to 60 seconds, move on to the next one."

Cardio conditioning for a healthier heart

In addition to stretching, Kozenko reminds seniors that a well-rounded exercise regimen should include cardiovascular conditioning and strength training.

Experts agree that everyone should get a minimum of 20 minutes of sustained cardiovascular exercise at least three times a week. Among the many outdoor activities that accomplish this are walking briskly (at a rate of three to four miles per hour), biking and swimming. Indoor options include using a treadmill, ski machine or stationary bike; working out with an aerobics video; and doing chair aerobics, which involves moving your arms and legs while seated.

Of special importance, says Kozenko, is for each individual to stay within his 10-second target heart rate zone. To calculate the lower and upper ranges of your target zone, use the following formulas:

220 minus your age times 50 percent, divided by 6 to equal the lower range.

220 minus your age times 75 percent, divided by 6 to equal the upper range.

So, if you're 60 years old, your target zone ranges would be calculated like this: 220 minus 60 times 50 percent, divided by 6 equals 13.3 lower range; 220 minus 60 times 75 percent, divided by 6 equals 20.0 upper range. "Your 10-second heart rate should fall between these two numbers," says Kozenko.

For the above example, the target zone for a person age 60 would fall between 13 and 20 beats. "Be sure to check it periodically while exercising, and adjust your intensity level accordingly."

Strength training for stronger muscles and bones

Strengthening exercises are also essential to help prevent the effects of muscle and bone loss that come with aging, she says.

"You can combat this natural decline in a number of ways, including lifting weights, working out with large rubber strips, such as Therabands, or even doing calisthenics, such as sit-ups or leg lifts."

According to Kozenko, seniors who do strengthening exercises just twice a week experience dramatic improvements in their mobility and strength.

Kozenko recommends that seniors considering an exercise program, particularly if they are currently experiencing back pain, joint pain, or symptoms of osteoporosis, which include pain, especially in the lower back, should first consult a physical therapist or enlist the services of an exercise physiologist who has been specially trained to help people exercise properly.

"Any age is the right age for exercise," concludes Kozenko, "because it's never too late to take control of your health. Exercise is an important part of maintaining a lifestyle that is positive and fulfilling. And in most cases, once people start exercising, they can't imagine life without it."

Calcium channel blockers and high blood pressure

Twice in the past year, millions of high blood pressure patients were alarmed by news reports suggesting that they may be at increased risk for a heart attack if they are taking a blood pressure medicine known as a calcium channel blocker.

Major professional medical organizations promptly issued statements that patients should not stop taking their blood pressure medicine and that any change in medication should be discussed thoroughly with their doctor.

Patients must understand that if they stop taking prescribed blood pressure medicine, their blood pressure may rise significantly and cause a heart attack or stroke, experts noted.

Key facts patients should know about their blood pressure medicine:

Q. Are calcium channel blockers safe?

A. Calcium channel blockers have been used by millions of patients for 20 years. Their safety and effectiveness have been established through numerous clinical trials. Currently, there are more than a dozen calcium channel blockers approved by the FDA for the treatment of high blood pressure. Nevertheless, in some patients calcium channel blockers may not be appropriate. Raise this question with your doctor.

Q. Should I stop taking my present calcium channel blocker medication?

A. No. It is important to discuss all treatment decisions with your doctor before discontinuing medication. Patients who discontinue their medication may experience dangerously high blood pressure levels, risking a stroke and a possible heart attack.

Q. What treatment options do I have?

A. Several different classes of drugs are used to treat high blood pressure. They include:

- Calcium channel blockers.
- ACE inhibitors.

- Beta blockers.
- Diuretics.

Each class works differently to produce the desired effect of lowering blood pressure. Not all classes of drugs are appropriate for all patients and, within each class, the desired effect can vary for individual patients. This is why it is important to discuss therapy options with your doctor.

Our philosophy is to never give up on a patient.

Fighting cancer: Zion program treats body, mind and soul

By RHONDA HETRICK BURKE
Editor in Chief

Pat Kiser knows what it is like to be given a death sentence. She was diagnosed with colon cancer a year ago and after undergoing a series of chemotherapy treatments at the University of Iowa, her doctor told her, "there was nothing else he could do."

"He basically said, go home and die," said Kiser of Muscatine, Iowa. "I didn't do that. I went home and started reading everything I could get my hands on about cancer treatment."

Through a church member, Pat and her husband, Ron, were told about the Cancer Treatment Centers of America in Zion, and were lead there to check-out the program.

"After calling the 800 number, we received a package by overnight mail and we were here the next Monday," Pat said.

The Kisers were very skeptical upon their arrival in Zion that the program would be any different. But after hearing about the multi-modality approach to the treatment of cancer, including programs for nutrition therapy, pastoral care and others which emphasize the importance of treating the body, mind and soul, the Kisers decided to enroll in the program.

"The program here emphasizes what I had been reading about, particularly that nutrition can play a role in improving the prognosis of a cancer patient," Pat said.

According to Pat, when she told her doctor at home about the treatment program at the Cancer Treatment Centers of America, he reiterated that "nothing but chemotherapy will help, and it won't help you."

After her third treatment at the Zion facility earlier this month, Pat was told that both her cancer markers had shown a dramatic decrease. One marker went from 1,200 to 686 and the other from 12.4 to 8.6.

"These are very low numbers," said Roger Cary, president and CEO of the Cancer Treatment Centers of America.

"This is the best news," Pat said. "It is the first good news I have heard in a year."

Pat says the experience at the Zion hospital has been very unique. "You can talk about anything here," Pat said. "There is a spirit of camaraderie in the hospital that gets you out of the doldrums; it is like having a second family. I have met a lot of people I really like and many which I love and will never forget."

Pat told her story during the weekly Thursday morning Patient and Family Focus Group, in which patients, family members and hospital staff participate. The group is led by Cary, the president and CEO, who moderates each week to find out what the Cancer Treatment Centers of America are doing right and what they could do better.

"Our philosophy is to never give up on a patient," Cary said. "We have 292 patients that have survived five years after being told by other physicians they were terminal and had six months or less to live."

For each of those patients, a tree is planted in their honor in the park near the hospital.

Cary says the focus of the Cancer Treatment Centers of America is on getting patients well.

"We will never tell a patient that it is hopeless; we have a whole lot of ways to beat cancer and lots of options," Cary said.

Many of the patients who spoke out at the focus group meeting, say spirituality is the key to the program.

"It's like everyone here went to friendly school," said Shirley Fleck of Ohio. "The doctors pray with you. The program gives you the strength and inspiration to keep fighting." She and others find programs, such as the focus group, vital to their treatment and to helping family members learn more about the disease.

FOCUSING ON PATIENT CARE

Final in a four-part series

By JEFF PATERSON
Staff Reporter

A citizens group has found a receptive ear for its message that future development in Lake County should be weighed against the possible impact of that development on local watersheds.

"You have to understand that, whatever you do to the land negatively impacts a wetland, a stream or a lake," said Suzanne Harris, Long Lake resident and Co-chair of the Impact Coalition.

Harris spoke on July 28 to the Lake County Planning, Building and Zoning Committee. One of her goals was to remind the committee that the county's water resources were economic resources as well, and that these should be preserved in the county's forthcoming unified development ordinance.

"You have to look at us as you would Cape Cod, or Palm Springs, Fla.," Harris said of Western Lake County's recreational economic base. "What does this area need to ensure economic stability? We need to control flooding and we need to preserve water quality."

Remembering the floods of 1986, 1993 and 1996, Harris indicated that a primary and growing threat to flood control was an acceleration of watershed activity through real estate development.

One example cited was that of the Squaw Creek Basin watershed, which drains precipitation falling on 24,000 acres into 350-acre Long Lake.

Comparing the situation to "trying to pour a gallon-jug into a pint glass," Harris pointed out that flooding problems were already occurring on Long Lake even without much of the watershed being developed.

Development water retention ponds, Harris argued, did little to reduce the total volume of water heading downstream, while the impermeable surfaces, such as asphalt, development introduces accelerates the flow and reduces total absorption.

"The more (natural surface area you lose) the greater the impact on our watershed," Harris said.

In order to better protect Lake

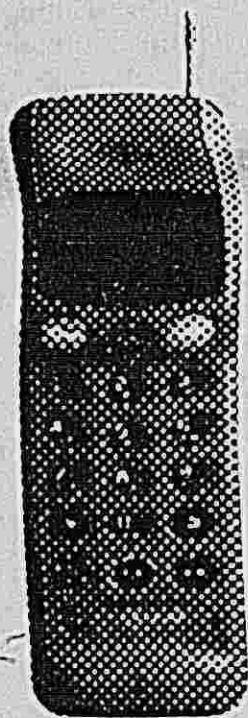

County against flooding and to improve water quality, the Impact Coalition presented the committee with a list of 18 points and proposals to consider while creating the unified development ordinance.

Key among those points were: removal of antiquated resort recreational (RR) zoning, strict enforcement of soil and erosion control, encouragement of developers to use natural vegetation as wetland buffers and no development use of wetlands for the storage of stormwater.

Speaking after Harris, Stormwater Development Executive Director Ward Miller agreed the impact of development should be carefully con-

AT A GLANCE

A DIGEST OF STORIES MAKING HEADLINES THROUGHOUT OUR REGION

Community Watch a hit

Venetian Village—Venetian Village Community Watch officials celebrated their first year by being asked to represent how Community Watch helps the police and community work in partnership with each other.

The 11 block captains from the 100-member group worked many hours to assemble information so they could present it at the Lake County Fair in a booth adjacent to the Lake County Sheriff's Department.

The group was asked by Sheriff Gary Del Re to explain the program to those who might be interested.

Community joins "Night Out"

Round Lake area—Four of the five Round Lake area communities are taking part in the National Night Out Aug. 5.

The program is designed to send a message to criminals residents are not going to tolerate crime and are taking their communities back. Participants hope to show support for community policing efforts.

Hainesville is offering a balloon launch and a community bike ride, Round Lake Beach is sponsoring a march from it's Metra train station to it village hall, Round Lake Park also has a march planned from village hall to the police station, a balloon launch and K-9 demonstration. Round Lake is encouraging residents to lock their doors, turn on their porch lights and visit with their neighbors.

Youth returns unharmed

Gurnee—A Gurnee family is hoping life can return to normal now that a 12-year old boy has been found and is safe.

Allen "Adrian" Glans left his family's trip to Six Flags Great America late July 20 and was not found until July 25.

In the meantime, hundreds of flyers were circulated, a state police helicopter used to check possible campsites and interest was keen among the boys' friends. He was found playing video games at a Vernon Hills store.

"I can't say enough about the community's interest. The children in the neighborhood passed out flyers and all pulled together," Jeff Glans, the boys' father, said.

Gurnee police said the main lead came from someone who saw a flyer at a gas station at Route 41 and Delany Road.

"He spent his time outside. He was fine except for a few bug bites," Gurnee Police Commander Fred Witte said.

Department of Children and Family Services has been notified.

"We put the flyers anywhere a lot of people would be. It was a very well orchestrated community involvement," Witte said.

hospitalized in critical condition suffering from injuries he received in a car accident this past weekend.

Sean Hernandez, 16, was found unconscious in a car that crashed into three others and the garage of home on the 25000 block of Bonner Road at North Monroe Avenue at 1:16 a.m. July 27, authorities said.

The driver, Cory Bradshaw, 18, was apprehended at his home, down the block from the scene, while Hernandez' roommate, Jeffrey Vanteylingen, 16 apparently walked home, authorities said. Charges against Bradshaw are pending a review by the Lake County State's Attorney's office.

Last chance at special census

Lake Zurich—Village officials are aiming to get as many residents counted as they can before the 2000 census is taken by the U.S. Census Bureau.

The deadline to have a special census conducted is June 1998, with all requests received no later than this September.

Officials believe approximately 310 new residents will be counted from a new subdivision and recently annexed residential areas in town, which officials said could boost the village's share of state tax distributions by close to $90,000 over the next three fiscal years.

Cafe gives chance to mentally ill

Grayslake—The first of its kind in the midwest has opened its doors in Grayslake. Hard workers and a chance at a happy, fulfilling life are the keys to Mes Amis Cafe, a consumer operated business run by adults recovering from mental illness.

The cafe was founded by Lake County Enterprises, a non-profit group formed as an off-shoot of the Alliance for the Mentally Ill of Lake County. The cafe is staffed by members of Independence Center, in Waukegan.

Mes Amis Cafe is located at 549 Barron Boulevard (Rte. 83), Grayslake.

"These people are very hard workers," said Marilyn Stanley, executive director of Lake County Enterprises. "Most of them are pretty much like you and I. Often they need this extra support to get back into the regular work force...The major reason we did this is so people can see they are normal people and are hard workers."

Trustees debate sidewalk policy

Gurnee—An overall policy regarding sidewalks will be considered before Gurnee trustees resolve a neighborhood dispute.

A general debate on sidewalk policy took place as village board members considered the matter for Dorchester Avenue west of Estes Street.

"People will be more acceptable to it if there is a priority list and criteria," resident Dave Egan said.

Egan and four anti-sidewalk residents appeared at the meeting. One was for the sidewalk off Dorchester.

"After this is over, we should discuss the criteria for sidewalks so in future years, we have something to fall back on," Tom Chamberlain, trustee, said.

Trustee Tracie Bullock opposed the priority listing of sidewalks, opting for discussion at budget hearings and recommendations from the village engineer.

"That is what we pay department heads to do," Bullock said.

Village engineer Bud Reed said prior policy was to place sidewalks near parks or schools.

Most trustees favored a clarification of that policy.

Young Riders Championship begins Tuesday

By ELIZABETH EAKEN
Staff Reporter

What may be considered the top riding event in North America for young people ages 16-21 is coming to Lake County this week. The North American Young Riders Championships (NAYRC) has been held at Tempel Farms in Old Mill Creek for the last 10 years and is scheduled for Aug. 5-10 this year.

The competition will feature the Olympic equestrian disciplines of Dressage, Show Jumping and Three Day Eventing competitions. over 100 riders from all regions of the U.S., Canada, Mexico, Puerto Rico, Bermuda and the Caribbean islands will be competing. The purpose of the event is to prepare the young riders for the rigors of international competition and the Olympics.

This will be the last chance to see the championships for two years. Beginning next year the plan is for the competition to alternate between Tempel Farms and High Prairie Farms in Colorado.

The competition is a wonderful way for local young riders to see what others their age, at the top level of the sport are doing. For the uninitiated going out to the farm for a beautiful day in the country and to watch the exciting jumping and beautiful dressage events is fun enough, according to Kathy Trulson, a worker at the competition. She said they will be serving breakfast and lunch throughout the competition.

Many of the previous medal winners in the NAYRC, are now ranked among the finest riders in the world. Among them are Greg Best, 1988 show Jumping Olympic Silver Medal winner; top international show jumping riders Chris Kappler and McLain Ward, dressage rider Kathleen Raine and event riders Abigail Lufkin, Molly Bliss and Missy Rauehausen.

The riders in this competition must qualify through a screening process and for may it's the first time they've competed under rigorous Federation Equestrian Internationale (FEI) rules.

The championships will be held at Tempel Farms located on Wadsworth Road between Hunt Club Road and Route 41. For more information contact the North American Young Riders Championship at 244-5330 or 244-9207.

Beginning on Aug. 6, the events will start at 9 a.m.-1 p.m.; Aug. 7, 8:15 a.m.-2 p.m.; Aug. 8, 8 a.m.-1 p.m.; Aug. 9, 7:30 a.m.-2:30 p.m. and Aug. 10, 8 a.m.-3:30 p.m.

Admission to the championships is free Aug. 6 and 7. Daily admission is $6, or three day tickets may be purchased for $10. Tempel Lipizzan performances will also be held at their regularly scheduled times Aug. 6, 10:30 a.m. and Aug. 10, 1 p.m. Admission for these shows is $14 for adults $12 for seniors and $5 for children.

County Housing Authority Board elects officers

At its annual meeting, the Board of Commissioners of the Housing Authority of the County of Lake, Illinois, re-elected Sten Swanson of Wauconda as its chairman. Swanson has been a board member since 1991 and served as vice chairman for four years. In addition to his service on the Housing Authority Board, Swanson is retired Financial Secretary of Local 20 of the Bricklayers Union, Bangs Lake Management Committee member and a member of Transfiguration Church in Wauconda.

The board also re-elected Fred Gablenz of Grayslake as its vice-chairman. Gablenz has been a resident of Grayslake since 1974 and is a member of Shepherd of the Lakes Church. Gablenz has served on the Housing Authority board since 1991.

'Bunching' mode must be eliminated

Without determined intervention, vast areas of unincorporated open space in west Lake County could be turned into an enclave of townhomes separated by patches of water and wetlands under terms of the proposed Unified Development Ordinance being considered by the Lake County Board.

Intensifying undesirable high density housing could come about through the granting of permits for construction of extra housing units in exchange for "natural resource" contributions. The resulting housing product is known as "bunching," or clustering high density housing around approved and protected wetlands.

County officials have just had their first look at a preliminary draft of the UDO, a document that will replace standards established in 1982. Early criticism has centered on the document's vision deficiency, absence of a zoning map and lack of density standards. Given some allowances for being only a preliminary effort, the document's lack of a clear-cut vision statement and an address of critical density questions truly is alarming.

Pamela Newton (R-Vernon Hills), chairperson of Planning, Building and Zoning, says the revamped ordinance is being designed to halt urban sprawl and maintain the character and quality of life in Lake County. All well and good. But swapping non-buildable land for higher density housing, a notion that prevailed on the County Board in a previous administration, isn't going to accomplish the high-toned aims sounded by Newton.

Formulation of a new UDO is critical because county zoning policies establish the climate for building and development in Lake County. Local municipalities, true, are not bound by county ordinances, but it rightly can be stated that the county can provide a valuable model. Barry Hokanson, Lake County's planning and development director, states flatly that existing regulations don't maintain the county's character. The onerous suburban zoning classification, a catch-all once described derisively as "open kimona" zoning, contributes mightily to abuses and should be purged from the new document.

If a majority of County Board members are honest about reversing a trend that is hastening sprawl and the "condoizing" of west Lake County as a by product, now is the time to speak out loud and clear.

Utility choice lowers electric bills

BY BOB KUSTRA

As Lieutenant Governor, part of my job is to "sell" Illinois as a good location for a new or expanding business. I have seen the damage done by the high cost of electricity as some businesses look elsewhere to make investment.

According to a recent Clemson University study, Illinois consumers could save at least $2.7 billion annually by busting the electric utility monopolies and giving consumers a choice of suppliers. These savings would be realized by residential, commercial, and industrial consumers.

An immediate and dramatic drop in the average cost of electricity to business would remove a significant barrier to the further expansion of our economic base. Energy intensive industries would be more likely to make investments, expand operation and create new jobs. Just as important, families would get some relief when we flip a light switch or turn on the air conditioner.

The legislation (Senate Bill 55) now pending in the General Assembly falls far short of delivering the benefits consumers deserve.

I agree with the critics—including members of the Illinois

Aircraft tutor a master teacher

BILL SCHROEDER
Publisher

Because of the international acclaim of his airplane building aviation curriculum at Mundelein High School, Jim Jackson arguably is Lake County's best known teacher. He's already the Red Baron of U.S. secondary school flight training.

Since introducing aviation technology at MHS in 1980, Jackson and his students have built four airplanes. Their latest model is being adapted for global warming studies in Alaska's Glacier Bay area. But that's another story.

Right now the former shop and gymnastics instructor is pondering the next class aircraft construction project. "We'll let you know about that next spring," replies the mustachioed Wauconda resident with a warm smile.

Even if he wasn't well known for his innovative aviation courses, Jackson might be equally noted for his ideas about teaching young people. Jackson is proud of his theory of turning young people onto a career in some phase of flight by building their enthusiasm and self esteem. The same approach could be applied in other fields.

The reward of teaching, according to Jackson, is spurring kids onto a satisfying career. Seven of his former students are commercial airline pilots. Dozens have private flying licenses or are skilled airplane mechanics. One Jackson alum went into aeronautical engineering and helped design the landing gear for the heralded Boeing 777. "There are so many jobs that tie into flight," exclaims the long-time teacher.

Apart from implanting a love and interest in flight, Jackson's goal in teaching is to communicate the need for continuing the learning process. "That's my dream," he says unhesitatingly.

Spoken like a dedicated educator.

Mallard march

Managers of a Libertyville business atrium are candidates for town meanies. Building policy prevents supplying a mama Mallard with food and drink for her young. She's had several hatchlings perish for lack of nourishment.

Ducklings must be led to water soon after hatching or they die. Naturalists call this the Mallard March. Motorists see "the march" frequently across busy highways. Persons acquainted with the atrium duck prison are incensed that building management won't let someone open a door or provide an escape route for the ducks. "I was told the managers are trying to teach the mother mallard a lesson. How do you teach a wild creature a lesson?" one woman humped.

Which direction?

Up or down? That's the question for members of the Lake Zurich Downtown Revitalization Committee who are conducting a contest to get themselves a name that's easy to remember and doesn't sound so stodgy. They'll choose from the following nominations: "Downtown Lake Zurich Partnership," "Downtown Lake Zurich Alliance," "Uptown Lake Zurich," or "Uptown Lake Zurich Alliance." Come to think of it, the older part of every town in Lake County is known as "downtown." The only "uptown" I know of relates to a neighborhood in Chicago. Can anyone explain this?

Original music

Marilyn Walters, a Gurnee school teacher and accomplished musician, world premiered three original wedding compositions over the weekend at ceremonies uniting Amy Stephenson and Lisle J Kauffman III—a solo, a duet and a choral selection.

Walters accompanied herself on the piano at Calvary Presbyterian Church, Round Lake, where the wedding was held and she serves as choir director. Walters resides in Grayslake. She has a collaborator for the lyrics.

Well done

Mike Howes, a pro at Midlane Country Club, pronounced the first Lakeland Newspaper charity golf outing a well-run affair. Mike traded long drives with members of the Chicago Wolves who proved they can wield golf clubs as well as hockey sticks. The sports celebrities said to book them for a return engagement in 1998. So did State Rep. Andrea Moore (R-Libertyville) who held her own in the best ball, scramble format.

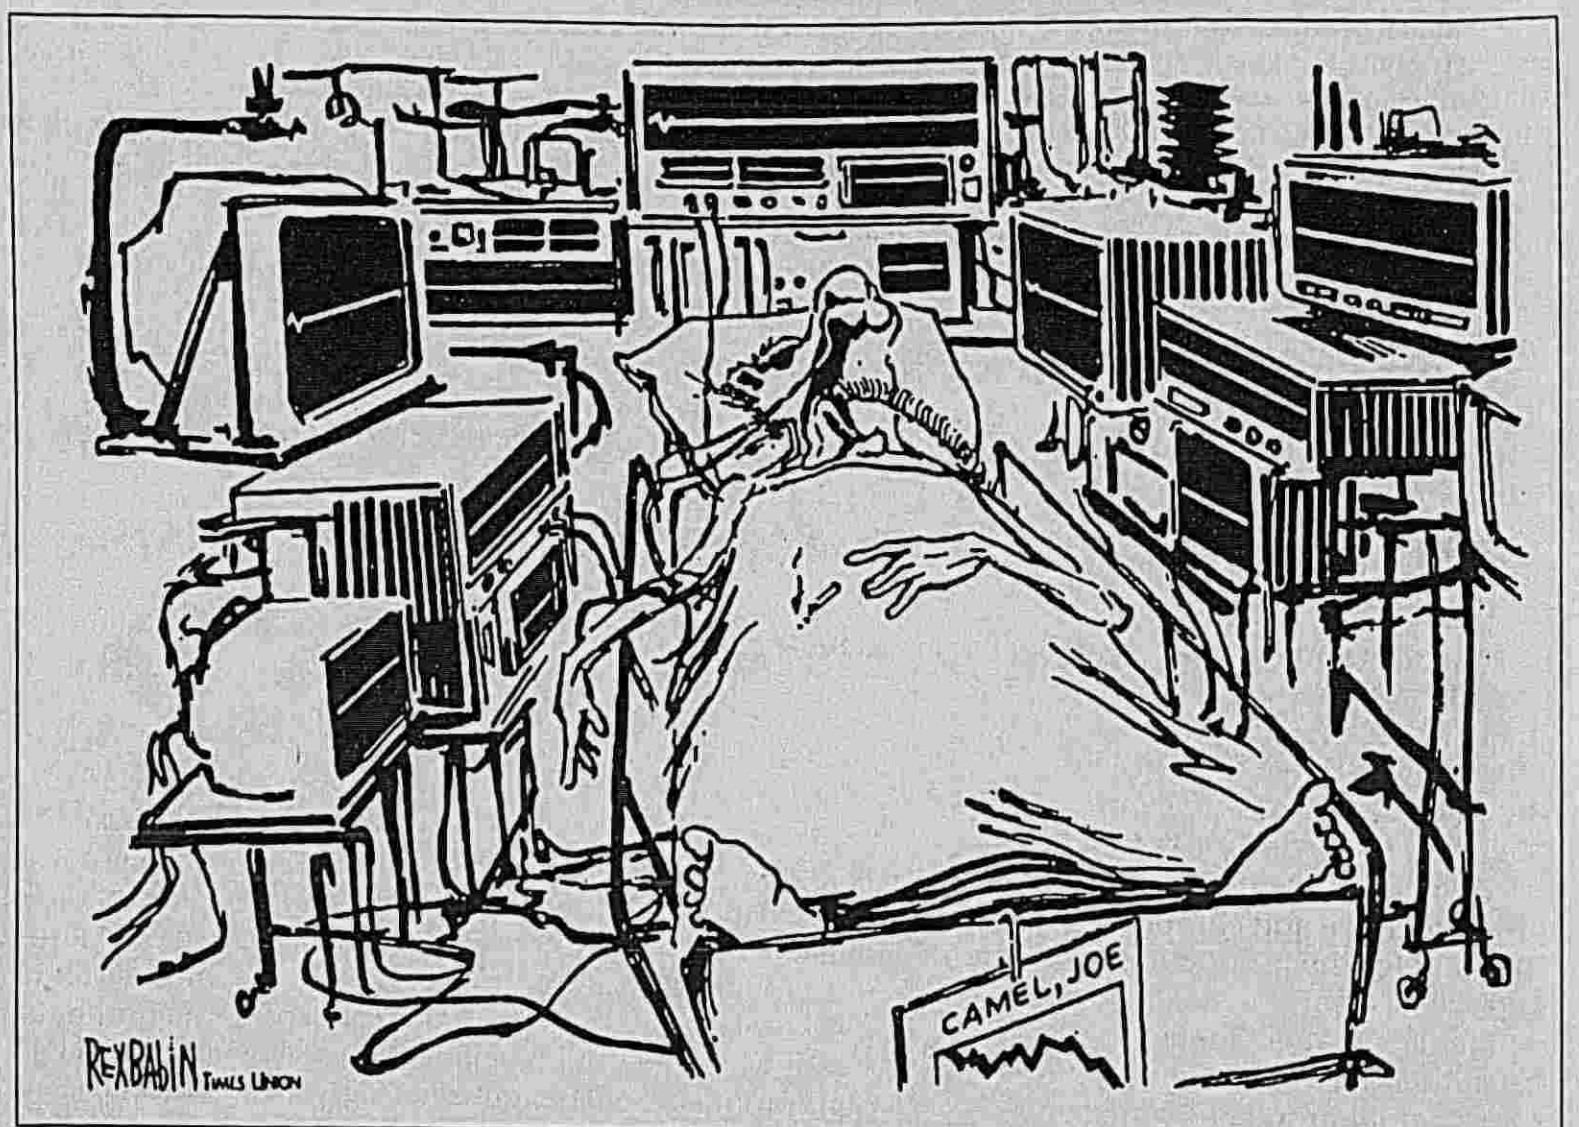

Life saving

Commuter travel time will be extended only about 45 seconds for Metra trains required to slow down to 50 mph from 70 mph in Fox River Grove, according to Sen. Dick Klemm (R-Crystal Lake). Klemm reported that the stopping time of a train traveling 50 is about half of a train traveling 70 mph. Klemm is the sponsor of a new law requiring a study on the effects of slower train speeds and safety.

PARTY LINES

PARTY LINES, THE LAKELAND NEWSPAPERS' COLUMN OF POLITICAL OPINION, IS PREPARED FROM STAFF REPORTS.

Think time: Salvi's '98 bid put in 'big if' category

A Chicago newspaper poll article showing he has strong positives in a match against U.S. Sen. Carol Mosely-Braun has Al Salvi rethinking his position about sitting out in 1998.

The "big if" has Salvi remaining cautious. If Gov. Edgar chooses to take on Mosely-Braun himself. Or, if either of the Ryans decides to run for the Republican nomination. "I won't run against the governor or George Ryan (Secretary of State) or Jim Ryan (Attorney General)," Salvi declared. The rest of the mentions for the GOP nomination? Salvi responded with a knowing grin. Interpret that as "in a minute."

Salvi watch

The budding political future of Dr. Tom Salvi, Al's bro and a short lister for a potential appointment to the Illinois General Assembly, came to a roaring halt when McHenry County GOP Chairman Al Jourdan let it be known he has a buddy in mind. The Crystal Lake family practitioner can console himself that House Minority Leader Lee Daniels likes him. Maybe something for the future?

Back to work

Friends and supporters of State Rep. Corinne Wood (R-Lake Forest) are thrilled at the way the Shore Line freshman has rebounded from breast cancer.

Wood: Rebounds from cancer, returns to 80-hour week

Bono: GOP Federation seeks another songster?

Wood soon will be up to pace with 80-plus hours legislative work weeks. Wood, 44, also isn't letting a health setback deter her role as a decision maker on Shields Township politics. Make that last word.

Look out

Officials of the Lake County Republican Federation have decided to be extra careful in selecting a headline speaker for their annual spring fund-raising extravaganza. Two of their recent keynoters have run afoul of public opinion—House Speaker Newt Gingrich and Massachusetts Gov. William Weld, reportedly as this is written, soon to be ex-governor. Maybe that's why they chose Congressman Sonny Bono, former songster, for the 1997 event. By the way, next year's date is Friday, May 8. Marriott's Lincolnshire Resort already has been booked.

Shaping up

With a nudge from the docs, Round Lake Beach Mayor Ralph Davis is going on a physical workout schedule. Too much desk work. The former football coach probably is thinking about "two a days" this time of year as a fast way to tune up.

In training

If history repeats, designated Winchester House administrator Robert Nussbaum will be on the job a long time. Chicagoan Nussbaum has been designated as an assistant to Robert Roland, who will retire at year's end. The Libertyville facility has had only a handful of administrators in the last half century.

Things we can learn from man's best friend

This is being written on one of those dog days of summer, so it seems fitting the subject should be our canine companions.

The term "dog days" has been around since the 16th century (I looked it up). It refers to the hot, sultry weather that arrives in July and early August.

The dog days are considered a period of stagnation or inactivity, which certainly describes my dog and me when the temperature soars to 100 degrees and the heat-humidity index is about 115.

There seems to be a contradiction of terms, the dog days being extremely unpleasant while our dogs, as we know, are born to please. Actually, the dog days are called that because they arrive when Sirius (the dog star, the brightest star in the heavens) is in conjunction with the sun. And that's about as far as I care to research this.

I tend to agree with Robert Fulghum's essay, "All I really needed to know I learned in kindergarten." You know, such things as "play fair, don't hit people, wash your hands before you eat, take a nap every afternoon, and when you go out into the world, watch out for traffic, hold hands and stick together."

Which reminds me of a greeting card I received from a fellow admirer of man's best friend. It's titled, "All I need to know about life I learned from my dog."

The card cites some of the things our dogs teach us:

"If you stare at someone long enough, eventually you'll get what you want."

"When you do something wrong, always take responsibility (as soon as you're dragged out from under the bed)."

"Always give people a friendly greeting—a cold nose in the crotch is effective.

"If it's not wet and sloppy, it's not a real kiss."

An old saying says it all: "The dog is the only thing in the world that loves you more than he loves himself."

Want to hear about my dogs? Okay. Our first dog was Sunday, also known as Sundae because she was so sweet. She died eight years ago at age 13 and we soon decided to get a second dog. I named him Monday, however corny that is.

We got Monday from a family that was trying to dispense with a litter. Rather than give them away the woman charged $50, trying to assure the buyers would care enough to provide a good and lasting home.

No problem there. We couldn't sell this $50 dog, this member of the family, if we were offered $1 million for him.

It has been said "all dogs go to heaven." I am reminded of that whenever I stroll through the Arrowood Pet Cemetery in Vernon Hills.

En route to that great fire hydrant in the sky, hundreds of pets have been buried there. On one gravestone it says, "Boo. Wherever I walk late in the evening, you'll always be with me." At Scamp's Bell's grave, her family's epitaph asks visitors to "step softly... a dream lies buried here."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Making abortion sense, not rhetoric

Abortion is one issue Congressman for Life John Porter is never a "moderate." He can always be counted to support the most extreme pro-abortion position—like his support of Planned Parenthood's taxpayer funded operations that help Communist China's forced abortion policy.

But even John "Litmus Test Liberal on Abortion" Porter topped himself on July 22. That was the day he sponsored a substitute amendment in the House Appropriations Committee that stopped an attempt by Congressman Ernest Istook to require parental consent before contraceptives or abortion drugs are used on a minor by federally funded agencies.

It seems Mr. Porter is against something that even the vast majority of "Pro-choice" voters are for—making sure any medical procedure on their child is approved by them. I know personally of one "pro-choice" mother whose minor daughter almost bled to death after a "safe and legal" abortion. We just had a case of a 12-year-old Crystal Lake girl who was driven by her junior high school teacher to the local abortion clinic to cover up their illicit affair. In both cases, parents weren't notified first and the consequences were tragic for all concerned.

Frankly, I am tired of being labeled a fanatic because I want common-sense regulations on the abortion industry—no tax funding for abortion and prenatal consent, a hospital setting and other standard medical procedures for a major operation like abortion, the right of any young girl contemplating abortion to be informed of all the risks (like increased breast cancer) and alternatives (like adoption), etc. The real fanatics are Mr. Porter and his ally Bill Clinton, who hide behind deceptive rhetoric ("making abortion safe, legal and rare") while fighting anything, no matter how much it makes sense for the young girl involved, that might reduce the number of abortions.

Tollway won't renege

In reference to Kenneth Patchen's article in the June 26, edition, "Rte. 53 'good faith' standards lack enforcement teeth, opponents say," the tollway is committed to the Corridor Planning Council (CPC) and has no intention of renegeing on the terms and spirit of the CPC construction standards.

Ms. Giles fails to understand that the standards not only apply to the tollway, but to all developers of major projects. No, the tollway did not have to agree to these standards or enter into the agreement with the CPC, but we volunteered to do so. Public agencies cannot make statements and agreements and not adhere to the terms and, to a highest extent, the spirit of these agreements.

Yes, there is language that allows the tollway and/or developers to explain when a standard cannot be met, but that does not mean that an amicable solution is not available. The tollway has legal responsibilities to bond holders to be prudent when designing and constructing a new tollway and cannot concede to arbitrary and capricious demands from the public.

Additionally, this by no means affords the tollway the luxury of ignoring the public as Ms. Giles implies in her statements. The tollway and all members of the CPC feel the construction standards are fair and we have every intention of adhering to the terms of the agreement.

Commerce Commission—who believe SB 55 is seriously flawed. Fortunately, the Illinois Senate did not rush to judgment on this legislation this spring, and the General Assembly still has an opportunity to correct the deficiencies.

We need legislation that moves Illinois into a free and competitive environment for the production, movement and sale of electricity and provides for equitable rate relief for all classes of consumers. SB 55 has several problems:

- It would protect the nuclear investments of Commonwealth Edison and Illinois Power and would mandate a rate reduction for CILCO, a utility that has cut costs and achieved a lower than average rate for a midwest utility.

- Consumers who leave an existing supplier and then tried to return later would be penalized.

- Existing utilities could target certain classes of customers with special rates to forestall new entrants into the marketplace.

- It would all but prevent independent producers of cheaper electricity from building new facilities in Illinois.

- And even though taxpayers recently paid $1 billion of the debt of the Illinois rural electric cooperatives to lower rates in anticipation of an open and free marketplace, the bill exempts those cooperatives from competition.

Legislators must listen to the concerns of the Illinois Commerce Commission and revisit the issue in the broadest terms and not proceed with the notion that this legislation be reintroduced with minor surgical repairs. This bill is in need of massive reconstructive surgery.

Our summer electric bills are a not-so-gently reminder that we need to change the way we buy our electricity in Illinois. We have the opportunity to help most Illinoisans keep more of their earnings by giving them the freedom to choose their electric supplier.

CANCER: Body, mind and soul treated in Zion program and how to treat it.

Cancer Treatment Centers of America use psychoneuroimmunology to help re-establish hope, diminish feelings of helplessness and depression and reduce stress. The program has been in existence since 1988, long before many other cancer treatment programs began to think about treating the whole body and not just the cancer.

Another vital aspect to the program at Cancer Treatment Centers of America is nutrition. Patients are served only organically-grown fruits and vegetables which are hand-picked and shipped in within 72-hours.

According to the National Cancer Institute, about one-third of all cancer deaths may be related to what an individual eats. At the Cancer Treatment Centers of America, each patient receives a individualized plan designed to prevent malnutrition, reduce side effects and support the effectiveness of cancer therapies.

Additionally, vitamin and mineral supplements are recommended by physicians to help support the immune systems and reduce toxic side effects of cancer drug therapy. Daily dosages are recommended of nutrients such as: beta carotene, vitamin C, Vitamin E, Selenium, EPA and others.

The mission of Cancer Treatment Centers of America is to provide the best cancer care in the world.

It was founded by businessman Richard J. Stephenson of Barrington, who purchased the American International Hospital in Zion as a business investment in 1975, and immediately made the commitment the hospital would pursue excellence in the delivery of healthcare services.

Stephenson's personal interest in health care emanated from an unfortunate family history of disease and premature death. His mother had been fighting cancer for years and the Stephenson family had experienced what the medical establishment considered "state of the art" cancer care at major medical centers throughout the U.S.

The treatment Stephenson's mother received—indifferent, uncaring staff members, medical and surgical treatments which ignored the interconnected nature of mind, body and soul—inspired the businessman to embark on a personal quest. His mission was to develop a cancer program which treated patients humanely, with compassion and respect, providing them with treatment options which included traditional medicine, surgical and radiological treatments, combined with nutrition, psychological and spiritual support and tender loving care.

The growth of the program at American International Hospital led to the creation of the Cancer Treatment Centers of America in 1988.

Today, Stephenson remains active in the facility.

"We have standing orders to apply the mother standard," Cary said. "Everyone here is to be treated like their were your mother."

The standard is applied when hiring staff members as well.

"We look for people who are not just technically efficient but who have compassionate and a good bedside manner," Cary said. "Our job is to take care of people and let them know they are cared for."

There are three Cancer Treatment Centers of America, the Zion facility is considered the flagship. The two other locations are in Tulsa, Okla. and Portsmouth, Va.

CITIZENS: Group urges watershed care sidered, even suggesting that the drainage ability of the county's 26 watersheds should be viewed as a limited resource.

"They (municipalities) wouldn't go out and expand some (residential) area without studying the capacity of the sanitary sewer system," Ward noted. "Well, the drainage system is just like any other part of our public infrastructure system; it's almost like a sanitary sewer system in that there's a set capacity for treating that drainage in a non-harmful way."

Miller indicated that this infrastructure is of particular importance in Lake County, as 20 percent of its area is considered 'wet', with either surface water or high moisture content in soil being present.

Chairwoman of the committee Pam Newton (R-Vernon Hills), thanked Harris both for her presentation and for her Impact Coalitions' suggestions.

"I will be referring these (points) to staff and to Stormwater Management to see if we can better accommodate these (flood) sensitive areas."

Ribbon cutting planned for Des Plaines River

A Ribbon-cutting Ceremony to celebrate the opening of a new one-mile section of the Lake County Forest Preserves' Des Plaines River (DPR) trail is planned for Sunday, Aug. 10, at 9:30 a.m. at the Kilbourne Road Trail Access Parking Area in Gurnee.

Held in conjunction with the annual Gurnee Days event, the Forest Preserves and Gurnee Days have combined celebrations to offer trail visitors an opportunity to break-in the new one mile trail section and also enjoy their choice of a 10 mile or 20 mile round trip bike ride along the entire 10 mile northern section of the DPR trail. Details on the Gurnee Days Bike Ride are available by calling the Village of Gurnee at 623-7658.

Lake County Forest Preserve and Village of Gurnee officials will be on hand to cut the ribbon and officially open the new trail section.

The new one-mile section is part of the northern Des Plaines River (DPR) trail that currently runs 10 miles south from Russell Road through Van Patten Woods, Wadsworth, Savanna, the Wetlands Demonstration Project, and Gurnee Woods Forest Preserves to Grand Ave. (Route 132).

Funding for the new one-mile trail section came from the voter-approved 1993 bond referendum and the Illinois Dept. of Transportation's Congestion Mitigation Air Quality program, a funding source under the Intermodal Surface Transportation Efficiency Act of 1991 that funded projects that would reduce emissions and provide transportation alternatives for single-occupancy vehicles.

The "Ribbon-Cutting Ceremony" is free and open to all ages. The ceremony will take place along the trail at the Kilbourne Road Trail Access Parking Area located on Kilbourne Road just north of Grand Avenue and South of Route 41 in Gurnee. For more information about the Ribbon Cutting Ceremony, call 367-6640.

An additional one-mile section of the northern DPR Trail is currently underway and will continue the trail's route from Grand Avenue south to Washington Street. This one-mile trail section should be complete by the end of 1997.

The southern section of the DPR trail currently runs 12 miles from Buckley Road (Route 137) south through Old School, MacArthur Woods, Wright Woods and Half Day Forest Preserves to Half Day Road (Route 22).

When the Des Plaines River Trail is complete, bridges and underpasses will allow trail users to wind their way, nonstop for 33 miles through some of Lake County's prime natural areas without crossing any major roads.

Water-loving canines go paw-to-paw

Relax in the dog days of summer and cheer for "fisherman's best friends" as they put their best paws forward when the nationally-sanctioned Portuguese Water Dog Trials return to Sterling Lake, on Saturday, Aug. 9 and Sunday, Aug. 10 from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., in Van Patten Woods Forest Preserve, on Rte. 173, just east of Rte. 41, near Wadsworth.

Hosted by the Portuguese Water Dog Club of Chicagoland, visitors will enjoy watching these webbed-footed canines compete as they retrieve articles from the water, boats, and lake bottom; deliver courier pouches from boat to boat, and boat to shore; place marker buoys on command; and, stretch fishing nets from boat to boat.

County anti-violence group supports National Night Out; families, neighbors, communities asked to participate

A Lake County anti-violence group is encouraging families, neighbors and communities to participate in National Night Out, a crime prevention event on Tuesday, Aug. 5.

"This provides a wonderful opportunity for area residents to come together in support of strong neighborhoods and communities," said Barbara Haley, chair of Lake County Unites for VIP (Violence Intervention and Prevention).

National Night Out, which began 14 years ago, promotes violence prevention, police community partnerships, safety and neighborhood unity.

Haley said that about 30 million people throughout more than 9,000 communities in the U.S. will participate in a variety of activities based on the theme "Give Neighborhood Crime and Drugs a Going Away party."

She said activities don't have to be elaborate.

"It could be something like a neighborhood cook-out or something as simple as introducing yourself and your family to someone you don't know on your block," Haley said.

"We see National Night Out as providing an excellent opportunity to promote healthy children and healthy families," said VIP member James Gorski, who is director of Warren Township Youth Services.

Gorski said VIP hopes families will set aside some time Tuesday night (Aug. 5) to do something as a family.

"Really, this shouldn't be a one-day event," he said. "People should be demonstrating their support for healthy children, families, neighborhoods and communities throughout the year."

He said it's especially appropriate that National Night Out takes place just before the Kids First Fair on Wednesday, Aug. 6, at Waukegan High School.

"Both events support the fact that, by and large, folks do care about the kids," Gorski said.

A collaborative effort involving scores of community organizations and residents, VIP began in 1994 with coordination by the Child Care Coalition of Lake County, the Lake County Health Dept., the Northern Illinois Council on Alcoholism and Substance Abuse (NICASA) and Prevention Services/InTouch.

Bill Hetland, communications coordinator and a prevention specialist at NICASA, said VIP has reached thousands of Lake County residents since its inception through forums, health fairs, violence prevention publications, monthly meetings and numerous additional projects.

Hetland said VIP merits special praise for developing the County Board-endorsed plan, "A Framework for Action," and its sponsorship of a Lake County chapter of YouthPeace.

Haley said residents and groups interested in knowing more about VIP are invited to the next regular monthly meeting from 9 to 11 a.m. Tuesday, Aug. 12, in Conference Room 112, of the Health Department, 3010 Grand Ave., Waukegan.

She encourages young people to attend the next Lake County chapter of YouthPeace meeting from 5 to 7 p.m., Tuesday, Aug. 12, in Building 1 at the College of Lake County.

'Families Matter'

VIP is planning its fall forum, "Families Matter," for Saturday, Nov. 1 at CLC. A Saturday was selected for this year's forum so that more families could attend.

"We're hoping that parents and young people will spend the day together," Haley said. "We'll learn how humor plays an important role in reducing stress in our lives. We'll also have workshops on youth involvement in violence prevention as well as sessions on personal safety, family communication, anger management and conflict resolution."

For more information, contact Haley at the Health Department, 360-6733.

Regulate noise

One night recently my husband and I were sitting outside for the first time this summer. All we could hear were barking dogs and my neighbor playing his radio out at his pool. Can't we enact some noise ordinances and if we do have them, why aren't we enforcing them? People should only be able to use radios outside with earphones. We have that technology. And howling, barking dogs are inexcusable.

Asked, not offered

I'm calling in response to "Ask next time" which appeared in the July 17 issue. Since when do you have to ask at a public meeting for a reading of the treasurer's report? No one realized until the board moved on to other business that nothing would be read aloud. The only reason the audience received copies of the audit of the Grant Township Area Athletic Association was because it was asked for, not offered by the board.

A few questions

I'm calling because I have a few questions the Grant Township Area Athletic Association can answer. Aren't managers voted on in March, the same time they knew the treasurer was misappropriating funds, and they voted to give her a team anyway in spite of the problems? And there were people who wanted to be managers in that division. Why are birth certificates collected at the end of the season? A little late, isn't it? How about All-Star teams being drafted and kids being told they're on the team before managers were announced? How did rosters get filled? Doesn't the All-Star manager have final vote? Why have rules and a rules committee when none of the rules are followed?

Spectacular display

Just wanted to give kudos to Vernon Hills, or whoever's been responsible for the fireworks display this year on July 4 and also on July 16. They were spectacular and the audience appreciated them. We hope they continue in the coming years.

Personal business?

On July 10 I was at First National Bank in Antioch. The Antioch Rescue Squad was parked out in front when I went in to the drive-in. The driver got out, did his banking, got back in the truck and left. I don't mind so much that they use the Rescue Squad vehicle, but what bothers me is the fact that they thought they were better than anyone else and parked in the street. As I was going back to my job, I saw the Rescue Squad again going south on Route 83, with no lights on. I'm wondering if our Squad is being used for too much personal business. If it is, maybe somebody should check into it.

Ask Britain for apology

I just want to say that asking the government to apologize for slavery in this country is ridiculous. When slavery started in this country, there was no United States. Half the country was under the rule of Britain, the other half under France. This was not a union when slavery was started. If they want an apology, ask Britain. The United States abolished slavery.

Hire me

Sometimes I am amazed, saddened, and/or amused at the pricing of many of the items put up for sale at garage sales. I'd like to offer a solution to this difficult problem, before your sale. I will evaluate price of every item. I will do this for my usual fee of $125 an hour. Now, this may preclude you from gaining any profit at all and you could suffer a monetary loss from your sale, but just imagine all those nice folks walking away from your sale with armloads of bargains saying, "Gee, what great prices at this sale." Please contact me anytime: Warren Anderson, 526-8377.

What are you thinking?

I keep seeing young families with 3 and 4 children. Has anyone ever heard of overpopulation? I mean, we have a serious problem in this country and yet people are having big families and there's a 50 percent divorce rate. What are you thinking?

Call cable

If anyone else is as irked as I am about not being able to see live television coverage of the Senate investigation of the fundraising scandal, call your cable company and ask them to carry the Fox network, the only network carrying the hearings live. If we're able to see the hearings live, we'll be able to make informed judgments about the issues involved and avoid the muddled thinking of a previous caller to Lipservice.

Mundelein

Recycle or pay

I live on the east side of Lake Zurich and was driving on garbage day and noticed that very few of the big homes' owners are breaking down their cardboard. Do they not care about the future of their children and the landfills? Are they so arrogant that they think they have so much money that they're special? I think the village should start fining people who don't recycle.

Improve ink, delivery

This is a great newspaper and I enjoy reading it, but I really would enjoy it a lot more if my hands weren't all black when I get done reading it. I also don't appreciate the paper being thrown in my driveway. I wish it would be on my doorstep.

Don't wanna hear it

The people in Fox Lake don't want to hear complaints about people who live in Fox Lake, Antioch, Round Lake, or any other town. Can't you put that in their papers? Editor's Note: Lipservice is a common feature for all the issues of Lakeland Newspapers. If the messages were zoned by area, there would not be enough to merit a column, therefore we provide readers with messages from surrounding communities.

The right thing to do

I think the big losers in the death of fugitive Andrew Cunanan were the lawyers who would have been prepared to defend him at taxpayers' expense. The Oklahoma bomber who was just convicted cost us taxpayers $10 million. I'm sure anyone who would have tried to be an attorney for Cunanan would have charged at least that much. Thank goodness we don't have to go through a trial now. I think he did the only thing he could have done.

Great job

I was calling to praise the coach for the Grant Township Little League farm division. For the All-Star teams there were two women and one gentleman who did a fine job throughout the whole season. They should be commended for their great skills in teaching these girls and I hope to see them again next year.

What can I do?

I'm a Grayslake resident and was wondering if anyone feels the same as me. It makes me sad when I see all the smoke filling the air, air pollution, water pollution, the ozone, etc. I want to start to do something but what should I do? Does anyone have an opinion?

Please inform us

After observing the spectacular fireworks in Vernon Hills on July 4, we eagerly anticipated the fireworks on July 16, at the opening of the fair. The first barrage of fireworks unfortunately landed somewhere in the crowd. There were ambulances seen but no reports available as to injuries encountered. We were looking forward to seeing some sort of coverage of the injuries in Lakeland Newspapers, but we have seen nothing. We'd also like to see some coverage by the paper of construction of commercial buildings going on. Unfortunately, the township doesn't require any display of what's coming and it would be appropriate for the local media to keep us informed.

Editor's Note: Lakeland appreciates the tip, and Lakeland staff is currently looking into the story.

Too noisy

I am calling about the trains that run at night, beeping their horns 30 times. Why does this happen in Mundelein? I moved here five years ago and it sounds busier in Chicago where I moved from. There's no reason to blow the horn that many times. We are currently moving and this is our number one reason for doing so.

Mundelein

Not buying now

I'm a prospective home buyer that came to the Round Lake Park area to look for a home. I drive in on Route 134 and looked at a few homes, and then drove down Washington Street. I was appalled at the kids hanging out on the street, hurling objects at cars and shouting obscenities at cars that drive by. No wonder no one wants to buy a home in Round Lake Park.

Down with kingdom

We have a new mayor and trustees in Lake Zurich, and supposedly a new way of looking at things. But apparently not. We are appointing a board to look after the review board for the police and Mr. Ramirez is on that board. He's been here and nothing has been done without his okay. It's more like he's the mayor and we have a part-time mayor that we pay $50,000 a year. Get real, Lake Zurich, we need a full time mayor, not a little kingdom within the village.

Clean it up

I have lived in Lake Zurich all my life. My husband and I decided to make a change, so we were looking at homes in Wauconda. First we looked at Larkdale subdivision. I wouldn't put my dog in those homes. Has anyone looked at the blue house by Dado's wall? It's a pigpen. I can't believe the Health Department hasn't stepped in. And on Marine Drive, does anybody know how to do a lawn there, trim trees, the homes are disgusting, shabby curtains in the window, etc. There's no way I'd move to Wauconda now after going through Larkdale. You people are ruining it for those who spent thousands on their homes.

We'll call police

This is for the Bright Meadows subdivision. The four boys that live in the big house with their spy glasses, next time the neighbors catch them or I catch them, the police will be called. They're invading everyone's privacy.

Thanks, Jim

What a breath of fresh air for Lake Villa Township to finally have a highway supervisor to work with us and not against us. Thanks, Jim Jorgensen, for all that you do for us. We really look forward to working with you.

Fox Lake Hills

More taxes, traffic

I live in Lake Zurich and I'm watching the village meeting on television. I can't believe they want to provide services to Deer Park. If Deer Park wants a police department, they can hire their own. It's too much money for taxpayers of Lake Zurich. There's more and more money coming from Lake Zurich to support other communities around us. And we just get more taxes and traffic!

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS

Don Taylor

Sometimes it's OK to steal

How do you grow your business when the number of competitors increases? How can you increase profits when there are fewer customers each year? The answer is appropriative marketing.

Defined, appropriative marketing means taking business away from other businesses. When the market segment you serve is shrinking, or more businesses are competing for a slice of your pie, you need to change your marketing style.

Appropriative marketing is an aggressive strategy, specifically aimed at stealing customers from others. A competitive market calls for a "survival of the fittest" approach.

If you aren't constantly improving your customer care, not only are you likely to see little growth, but also your own best customers may be at risk. It could be that a sharp competitor is analyzing your customer base as you read this. Therefore, a prerequisite to stealing customers from others is to first safeguard your own customer base.

To strengthen your defenses at home, you must focus on satisfying your biggest and most profitable customers. To keep them happy, you must know who they are, what their long-term value is to your business and what motivates them to do business with you.

When product offerings are similar, people often make the difference. Customers return to businesses where owners and employees treat them well. Business is personal, and everyone enjoys recognition and special care.

There are five steps in appropriative marketing. Follow these steps and you can generate new customers for your business.

1. Learn who your competitor's key customers are. It is very likely that you know some of them already. Identifying others may require some research.

One creative business owner hired a college student to record all the vehicles that stopped at her competitors. Since the customers were contractors, many could be identified by company names on their pickups and vans. Others were recorded by vehicle type, color and license number.

The owner discovered two key items with this inexpensive research. First, the competitors' most frequent users, and second that some of her best customers were also doing business with the competition.

2. Learn why your competitor's key customers do business there. You may wish to hire a market research professional or just ask some thoughtful questions yourself.

One women's clothier hired a university professor to conduct focus group studies with a competitor's customers. The studies revealed that customers preferred the competitor for the following reasons: 1. They liked the brighter lighting in the competitor's store. 2. Several commented on the cleanliness of the dressing rooms. 3. Most were members of a frequent-buyer's club which gave them early notice of new merchandise and a 10 percent discount.

3. Use what you learn. Attack

Gurnee goes Planet Hollywood

By STEVE PETERSON
Staff Reporter

Sans movie stars, Planet Hollywood opened its doors to customers Monday, representing the latest marketing strategies at Gurnee Mills Mall.

The 13,000 square foot celebrity owned restaurant puts Gurnee on the same footing in the Planet Hollywood roster as the likes of Washington, D.C., Indianapolis, Orlando, Minneapolis and Helsinki.

"The restaurant fits into the entire entertainment picture. It creates a synergy that will compliment the retail," Gurnee Mayor Richard Welton said.

Welton believes star-studded ownership of the restaurant will help the millions who come for attractions such as Six Flags Great America and other Gurnee Mills stores stay longer in Gurnee.

"It helps fill the gap and gives something for people to do at night. There should be a commonality when people go to the Marcus Theatre, which has expanded to 20 screens," he said.

"When Gurnee Mills opened in 1991 it was a retail mix. It felt it wanted to branch out to entertainment to stay competitive for 10 or 15 years and not become obsolete," Welton said.

Further store announcements which will compliment Planet Hollywood are expected in the coming months.

Mark Weissberg, general manager of Chicago and Gurnee Mills locations, said a grand opening will be planned in several weeks. Some 30,000 fans attended the latest grand opening for a Planet Hollywood in Indianapolis on July 21. They saw the likes of Bruce Willis, Cindy Crawford, Steve Baldwin, basketball star Reggie Miller and more.

The Gurnee Mills location has 150 movie and television memorabilia in three different rooms.

"When celebrities visit a Planet Hollywood, they often donate something from their movies," he said.

Everything from a rubber musket from "The Last of the Mohicans" to full length cloak and slippers used in "Hamlet" to a fireman's shirt used in "Backdraft"; a Carol Lombard silk gown and an Al Bundy t-shirt from "Married...With Children."

A handprint wall is located outside the restaurant. Autographed prints of Jack Nicholson, Mel Gibson, Kevin Costner, Jimmy Stewart, Harrison Ford, Jodi Foster, Lauren Beca and others are included.

Inside, one room is the SIFI room, another the Adventure Room and a third the Sky Room.

The Planet Hollywood concept began in 1991 followed by a worldwide expansion. There are some 50 Planet Hollywood locations now with more on the way. Arnold Schwarzenegger, Bruce Willis and Sylvester Stallone, Demi Moore and Whoppi Goldberg are all shareholders.

"Gurnee was a unique opportunity. It represents the closest Planet Hollywood, but we studied the number of visitors which come to town," Weissberg said.

Welton donned one of the Planet Hollywood jackets available for sale at one of two retail sales locations.

The restaurant may accommodate 380, but some hold up to 900 persons.

The menu includes California, Mexico, Asian cuisine. Prices average $5 to $16.

Keith Barrish, film producer, met restaurateur Robert Earl and came up with the concept of Planet Hollywood.

Hollywood fans believe mix is right for Gurnee

Diane Ptasienski and her family visited the Planet Hollywood location in Orlando, Fla. last fall and were pleased when the restaurant owned by movie stars and celebrities chose Gurnee.

"We went to the one in Florida and it is great. It is a family place. They have a Marilyn Monroe dress," Ptasienski, of Antioch, said.

Her son, Brad, age 12, noticed the Freddie Krueger figure spinning in a glassed container.

"It is something you would go to a couple of times a year," he said.

Raymond Kelly took a break to see what the commotion was as he made his rounds as a Gurnee Mills jogger. He has been doing that since the Mall opened in 1991.

"It is pretty nice. They should draw a big crowd," Kelly, of Waukegan, said.

The honorary first customer at just past 10:15 a.m. to view such items as the a Kelsey Grammar tie worn in Cheers; a black dufflebag used in The Cliffhanger; a pink hat worn by Ginger Rogers was Krissy Welton. Welton, the 16-year-old daughter of Gurnee Mayor Richard Welton, was glad to be the first customer.

"I think everyone will want to come once. I like all the Demi Moore movies," she said.

"It is a great concept," Mayor Welton said just before ribbon-cutting ceremony took place at 1:15 p.m.

Welton said the village had no role in negotiations between the Mall and Planet Hollywood.

Also to be opened soon are Computer City and recreational giant Bass Pro. Bass Pro could bring five million visitors to the Mills itself. The three could bring 1,000 jobs to Gurnee area.

The Mills, opened in 1991, is at 90 percent capacity.

Lake County to open first employment training center

Lake County residents seeking jobs will have a one-stop shop available to help in that process when the new Employment Training Center opens in early August.

Lake County Chairman of the Board Robert L. Grever said that the first center will open in new offices at the Private Industry Council (PIC), 415 Washington St., Waukegan. PIC's services remain in place, and will be enhanced by the new center, which is expected to be open Aug. 15.

"These centers are part of an innovative, statewide networking system that unifies all publicly funded employment and training services administered at the federal, state and local levels," Grever said. "The one-stop centers bring organizations together under one roof to conveniently provide access to a variety of services for employers and applicants seeking assistance in meeting the challenges of today's job market. The centers also will address the changing need of an increasing number of individuals requiring retraining as they switch careers, which is more common than ever."

Grever added that Lake County received an implementation grant of $178,000 from Illinois to defray costs involved in establishing training centers. PIC Director Christine Stevens said that a second Employment and Training Center will be built on the College of Lake County campus in Grayslake. The second site should be ready for business in fall of 1998.

Stevens said, "An exciting new service offered at the center is a resource room where job seekers can find a wealth of print, computer-based and video information on how to conduct a successful job search." For further information, call PIC at 249-2200.

Financial assistance available through Lake County Housing Authority

Financing and technical assistance are now available through the Lake County Housing Authority to assist low income Lake County homeowners complete emergency repairs on their homes. These homes must be in Lake County (excepting Waukegan and North Chicago, because they have their own programs).

The program, funded through the Lake County Community Development Commission, provides home repair loans to income eligible households that are deferred or are repayable on very affordable terms. Deferred loans are originated at 0 percent interest and are only repayable at the time a homeowner sells or otherwise conveys title to their property. Typical types of repairs that create health or safety hazards include replacing furnaces, roofs, defective electrical systems, wells and septic systems.

Housing Authority staff are available to work with homeowners to identify qualified contractors to complete emergency repairs. Authority personnel will also provide on site inspections to ensure that the scope of work being performed complies with building codes and that the cost is consistent with the contract price.

Homeowners interested in applying for the program or in receiving additional information concerning income qualifications and eligible repairs should contact Karen Leonine at 223-1170 ext. 220 from 7:30 a.m. and 4 p.m.

Old Tyme Deli celebrates first anniversary

The Olde Tyme Deli is celebrating their one year anniversary in downtown Antioch. "We love having our family business here in Antioch and my mother and I wanted to thank all of our supportive customers and neighbors for a very exciting and gratifying first year," commented Patti Ryan, one of the owners of the deli.

The Olde Tyme Deli has recently introduced their "Frequent Buyer Cards." Each time a customer buys a specialty sandwich or sub their card is punched. Once the card is completed, 10 punches, the customer gets their choice of a free sandwich or sub. Weekly specials on meats and cheese are also what the deli is earning a reputation for. Carmela Thilmany, Ryan's mother and partner, is having a hard time keeping with the demand her homemade salads are creating.

"Just this week we had a customer call and order 25 pounds of my potato salad," said Carmela.

The Olde Tyme Deli is located at 389 Lake Street in downtown Antioch.

STEALING: Appropriate marketing

your competitors strengths with aggressive action. The clothier mentioned earlier upgraded his store's lighting, redecorated the dressing rooms and implemented a frequent-buyer's program.

4. Make them a special offer. It may take a strong appeal to get a regular customer of your competitors to try your business. One rental company offered a free day's rental with a value of more than $100 to a competitor's top 25 customers.

Another business created a special three-month, deep-discount program for new customers. An automobile dealer offered free service for a year. Whatever your offer, it must be good to change a customer's buying patterns.

5. Become a better choice. You must appeal to customers two main motivations: the need for value and the desire for personal respect.

Use special incentives, discounts and added services to create value. Train your people to build personal relationship. With a little effort you can appropriate some of your competitor's best customers and make them yours.

Sometimes an old-fashioned song
Brings us a thought of you;
Sometimes a flower as we pass along.
Or a sky that is azure blue;
Or a silver lining in the clouds,
When the sun is peeping through.
All of these things, make us think of you.

How To Survive
The Job Search

By Nancy Sakol

Dear Search,

I am a 27 year old high school graduate. I just moved to the Ingleside area. I have applied for at least 30 positions at mini marts, grocery stores, fast food places and miscellaneous others with not even a call back for an interview. I am not Albert Einstein but am very intelligent, public oriented and hard working. I fill the applications with correct information and just can't comprehend why I don't get a response, but when I go to the places that I filled out the applications at, they have hired high school aged employees. What can I do? I have many experiences and a family to support.

Dear Search,

In reading your letter, I had several questions that made it nearly impossible for me to formulate an opinion on what seemed to be the trouble. First, you say that you have just moved to the Ingleside area. When is "just"? Are you giving yourself a fair amount of time. Next, I see the pattern of places that you are applying for employment, which leaves me asking the question, what have you been doing for the past several years, and where have you been employed? Without having any employment history on you, it leaves me in a position to guess what the problem may seem to be. For instance, if you have been a mechanic for the past 5 years, I could understand why a mini mart may opt to hire someone with the cash handling and customer service ability. You say that you are "very intelligent", are you selling yourself short with the positions you are applying for?

When applying for a job, do you make a first good impression? You sound as though you have a sense of urgency to find employment. Without knowing your work history, for me to evaluate your situation would be like a doctor giving you a diagnosis before an examination. I would be happy to set up an appointment for you at one of our facilities. Give us a call.

Dear Search,

As a supervisor of a five person staff and being recently promoted to this position, I am writing about a problem that perhaps you can help me with. I prefer not to go to my boss about this for fear he will think that I am not capable of handling this position. I have a newer employee who I think is lacking in enthusiasm. The work load that he puts out is accurate and terrific, yet he doesn't seem to have the excitement that the others have. He has never come to me with any problems or concerns about the job, and seems to clearly understand it. Should I leave it alone or should I confront the situation? - Puzzled in Vernon Hills

Dear Puzzled,

Have you thought about the idea that perhaps he does not find the work interesting? Perhaps he has his eyes and heart in another field altogether. If you say that he does his work with accuracy, perhaps he is bored and needs to be further challenged. Another way to look upon this is how he reacts socially with the rest of the team. Is he pretty much to himself or does he fit right in with the rest. In other words, does he separate himself from the group. It could be that perhaps he feels he does not fit in with the rest of the staff. I would try to evaluate what you see as the problem and then sit down with him and find out how he feels about his job. If you should find after speaking with this individual, that there is a way of making him more comfortable on the job...great. If you see little hope for changing the lack of enthusiasm, and find that he is truly not happy in his job, let him know this is the job and offer your support in his efforts to find a new employer. Be sure to reinforce that in the mean time you will expect him to continue to produce until that time. Hope this helps.

Note: Nancy Sakol is a licensed personnel professional and President of Superior Personnel in Gurnee.

PET OF THE WEEK "Doomis"

"Doomis" is a male, two year old brindle colored hound mix. His short coarse coat is accented by white feet, a white face blaze and tail tip. In the prime of his life, Doomis wants a home and a family to love. His slightly droopy, puppy dog sad eyes however do not tell the whole story. This is an alert, bright dog who is responsive and eager to please. Doomis adores attention and affection and will be a great companion pet. Very playful, Doomis needs a securely fenced yard, where he can safely romp and play to his heart's content. Doomis has been at the shelter since 5/96. That's a long time to be in a cage without a home. Please come and see a wonderful do named Doomis, in Cage 65.

ALL DOGS BENEFIT FROM BASIC HOUSEBREAKING & OBEDIENCE TRAINING WHICH HELPS BOND DOG TO OWNER. CRATING IS RECOMMENDED WHEN THE OWNER IS AWAY FOR THE FIRST YEAR IF NEEDED.

Cash $55 donation includes free spay/neuter, collar, tag, leash, first shots, follow up care and more.

Orphans of the Storm is located at 2200 Riverwoods Rd., Deerfield. Hours are 11am-5pm, seven days a week. Call (847) 945-0235 for further information.

WAYLES

The Country style Wayles, with a graceful exterior of stucco and stone, has a functional floor design that is a perfect fit for a family who needs a larger living area. This two-story beauty has an openness that combines the necessities with all the extra features you have always wanted in a home. Along with 3,276 square feet of living space spread over two floors, there is a three-car garage, large basement and attic.

The first floor houses a master suite with all the latest features. It has a substantial sleeping area with vaulted ceiling and a gas fireplace to keep it cozy. Other amenities offered include: a private brick lined patio, huge walk-in closet with tri-plane door, built-in book shelves, and a private bathroom with skylit spa tub, oversized shower, and a vanity with twin basins.

The state-of-the-art kitchen, conveniently placed between the dining and living rooms, features a Garden window, eating bar, cooktop grill, double ovens, freezer and a big walk-in pantry. Any visitor will be enchanted with the built-in entertainment center in your living room.

A home office is located next to the vaulted entry. Whether you plan on starting a small business, maintaining household accounts or browsing the Internet, there is plenty of room for any equipment needed.

Sure to become a favorite for the entire family is the recreation room/home theater on the second floor. It even has its own snack bar with sink and refrigerator. The top story also contains the secondary sleeping areas. There are three good-sized bedrooms, a large guest room and two full bathrooms. The guest room is isolated in the corner and has an entrance to the adjoining bathroom. Bedrooms four and three have inside access to a bathroom. Bedroom two, if not in use, could easily be converted into a den or music room.

The attached three-car garage boasts an enclosed storage unit and a generous shop area. The attic offers four hundred and fifty-eight additional square feet for storage.
